WHERE TRAPPED LAD LIES

Artist's drawing shows how large rescue tunnel is being dug in attempt to save seven-year-old Benjamin Hooper of Manorville, Long Island, N.Y., who fell down narrow 24-foot well, Thursday. Loose, sandy soil is hampering workers in efforts to reach trapped lad. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hope Flickers for Boy Trapped in Narrow Well

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Stymied rescue workers turned to a top atomic research centre today for help in trying to save a seven-year-old boy trapped 19 hours in a dry well.

There were fears the race with time already was lost. The boy, Benjamin Hooper, 7, appeared to be covered with sand at a depth of about 24 feet in the narrow shaft.

Two trucks from the research centre, the Brookhaven National Laboratory, brought vacuum hose equipment in an attempt to draw sand out of the well.

Balked by sandslides from driving a tunnel horizontally to the boy, the rescue workers started a new tunnel slanting downward at a slight angle in hopes of better coping with the slides.

The boy tumbled into the well at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night while at play. He was able to talk and move, but then fell into silence.

Despite the gloomy outlook, Dr. J. H. Kris, refused in mid-afternoon to give up hope.

"It's possible but very improbable that the boy is still alive," he said.

A fireman said the boy, alive for hours after he fell in, appeared to be entirely covered with sand. Rescue workers trying to reach the boy by digging a horizontal tunnel were blocked constantly by sand slides.

"I could only see something that looks like a root," said J. H. Warner, an Eastport fireman, after peering into the well with a searchlight.

"That's the only thing that shows. There was only a clean layer of sand otherwise."

Hundreds of persons gathered in this central Long Island village to lend a hand in whatever way possible.

The well shaft was too narrow—three feet in diameter at the top and tapering to a few inches at the bottom—to permit rescuers to descend.

Fell in 5 Minutes After Well Dug

The boy tumbled feet first into the well only five minutes after his father had finished digging it. There was no water in it.

"Oh, my God, what have I done to deserve this?" the father cried.

Unable to reach the boy, he called help.

Fire departments sent rescue equipment and ambulances. The rescue operation went on through the night under the glare of searchlights and then on into the morning.

The father worked with the rescue workers until he collapsed.

MOTHER HYSTERICAL

The boy's mother, Betty, 30, learned by accident of the boy's plight. She is a telephone operator in the Riverhead office of the New York Telephone Co. She heard a detective reporting the boy's fall to police headquarters and became hysterical. Friends drove her home.

She was given sedatives but couldn't sleep. She paced beside the well, and then in the house.

Gessert Outdoes Beck In 'No-Answer' Probe

71 Refusals To Testify In 21 Minutes

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate labor racket committee charged today that a relative of Dave Beck simultaneously got $50,000 from the Teamster Union payroll and $51,000 from a company selling goods to the union.

Kennedy said union merchandise made $200,000 in 1953-55, mostly from sales to Beck's union.

The relative, Norman Gessert, invoked the fifth amendment to this and all other questions the committee shot at him as he began public testimony. He refused to answer 40 questions in the first 10 minutes, a record.

After 21 minutes, the refusals tallied 71 and threatened Beck's grand total of more than 200 refusals to answer queries.

Gessert even refused to confirm his statement of Thursday that he is an international organizer for the Teamsters Union and lives at 16730 45th Street Northeast in Seattle.

Gessert, a trim, grey-haired man with a stolid, craggy face, refused even to say that he knew his own attorney, Edward L. Carey, who sat beside him.

Gessert would not say that he knew Dave Beck, the committee's biggest target and president of the teamsters, the nation's biggest union, nor his cousin, Mrs. Beck.

HOLIDAY WEEKEND PREVIEW?

George Lindsay, B.C. motor vehicles superintendent, today hoped the above pictures would NOT be in the paper Tuesday as he appealed for sane driving over the holiday weekend. With his appeal, he coupled a warning: "To those who may have a desire to take chances it may be of interest to note that during the past week we have suspended 101 drivers' licences... slow down, save your licence—and your life." (See Also Page 2.)

Made Profits Out of Union Deals

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Gessert was employed by the Teamsters Union from April 15, 1954, until March 31, 1957, receiving $50,903.72 in salary during that time.

Kennedy said Gessert at the same time was employed by Union Merchandising Co., a firm whose principal income derived from sales to the Teamsters Union, and received $51,000 in salary from that company.

Kennedy said Union Merchandising Co. is owned by Beck's friend, Nathan Shefferman, and his son, Shelton Shefferman. Shefferman testified in March that he paid $85,000 of Beck's bills with union funds. He is a labor consultant for management, with about 300 clients, including many of the nation's largest department stores.

Kennedy said Gessert from 1935 to 1952 was on the payroll of the Retail Clerks' Union, which he described as a "capable" of the teamsters. He said that in this period Gessert also worked for the Lindsay Construction Co., which built Beck's luxurious lakeside home in Seattle.

Gessert's appearance was a sort of anti-climax to a merry-go-round Thursday with Beck.

Beck took the fifth amendment to all questions about his financial affairs, and the session wound up with chairman John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) urging that the teamsters' union conduct its own probe to see for itself whether Beck should be booted out as the union's president.

Egypt Will Fight Israel Ship Test

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt today declared her right to take "all measures" to defend her rights in the event an Israeli test ship tries to sail through the Suez Canal.

The declaration came from Col. Abdel Kader Hatem, information director at the national guidance ministry.

Hatem said Egypt "has the right to defend herself in accordance with the 1888 Constantinople convention and to take all measures to maintain her security."

The 1888 convention assures freedom of passage through the canal in time of peace. Egypt still maintains its belligerence rights against Israel as a result of the 1948 war.

Hatem said "Israel is only a toy in imperialist hands. She moves when she is ordered and stops when told to do so." He added:

"No power in the world will stop Egypt from exercising her right."

Israel to Await UN Debate on Suez

JERUSALEM, Israel (UP)—Israel will wait until after next week's Suez debate in the UN Security Council before deciding whether to send an Israeli test ship to the Suez Canal, a government spokesman said today.

The freighter Mars waited at Haifa loaded with 4,500 tons of potash and industrial goods for Japan. Officials pointed out sending the Mars to the canal would not constitute a "test" since the ship is owned by Norwegians and is under charter to an American firm.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, heavenly Father, for the revelation of truth by which our lives may be guided. As we discover the forces of nature which can put power in our hands, let not our little knowledge obscure Thy great truth; through Christ our Lord. Amen.

10,000 BESIEGE EMBASSY

Tokyo Students Jeer British Bomb Tests

LONDON (AP)—Britain announced tonight that her first hydrogen bomb test explosion in the Pacific was "in the megaton 1,000,000 tons of TNT range."

TOKYO (UP)—Ten thousand and jeering Japanese students waving banners proclaiming "British fools" and "ban H-bomb tests" converged on the British embassy today and put it in a virtual state of siege. More than 1,000 police were rushed to the embassy armed with long white riot sticks, pistols, short clubs and tear gas to stop the demonstrators against Britain's current Pacific H-bomb tests, from forcing their way into the compound.

After the leftist-inspired demonstrators had gone on for several hours, the embassy agreed to receive a delegation of four student leaders.

The four were pushed out of the compound shortly afterward by C. F. Hill, second secretary of the embassy, who said they had become abusive inside the embassy.

As evening approached the demonstrators gave no sign of dispersing and police prepared for an all-night vigil.

All traffic was stopped on the broad street separating the embassy compound from the Imperial palace moat.

Paul Martin Speaks Here Thursday

The itinerary of Federal Health Minister Paul Martin has been changed next week to allow him to visit Victoria.

He will arrive by seaplane from Vancouver at noon next Thursday and will attend a reception in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden at 12:45. The public is invited and Mr. Martin will make a brief address.

He flies to Parksville in the early afternoon and will speak at a meeting there at 2:30 p.m. Mr. Martin will address a public meeting at Nanaimo at 8 p.m. and will return by ferry to the mainland afterwards.

Thet Dave Beck crowd is whut y' might call taciturn.

I s'pose thet's a wide open convention th' dentists are holdin' here.

Th' Cougars might hev beat th' other teams but they couldn't lick th' empty seats.

CAR SIDESWIPE HIGH SPEED, PLUNGES IN DITCH

St. Laurent's Brush With Death Third Scary Incident This Week

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

BARRIE, Ont.—I watched Canada come very close to losing Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in a highway accident Thursday when the automobile he was travelling in at high speed sideswiped another car and went into the ditch five miles west of here.

The 75-year-old prime minister emerged from the wrecked car without a bruise and only slightly shaken up despite the fact it was his side of the car that suffered the severest damage. With other reporters, I ran down the highway in time to see Mr. St. Laurent climb out of the wrecked car. He managed a smile, then I heard him say without a quaver in his voice:

"I'm all right. I'll be all right."

It was the second mishap for the prime minister Thursday—the third accident of the week.

Tuesday his plane was diverted to Malton Airport because of weather in Ontario and had to make two attempts before landing on instruments, after circling the field for a half-hour.

Earlier Thursday, at Penetanguishene, a wooden barrier collapsed while the prime minister was setting nine-year-old Cathy Sauve on it for photographers. Mr. St. Laurent fell backwards but held on to Cathy and neither was hurt. The pictures then were taken.

After the car accident the PM was remarkably composed considering the close brush with death. He had been sitting in the front right-hand seat—known to insurance companies as the "suicide seat" because of its high number of fatalities.

Driver of the car, Mrs. Pearl Payette, Midland, Ont., a widow, was credited with quick thinking when a farmer, Norman McGirr's car pulled out from a side road.

In the split seconds between the time her Cadillac scraped the side of the other car, she guided the 1957 sedan past heavy guy wires, over a large culvert and past a telephone pole.

The car landed on its wheels in the soft mud of the deep ditch off the pavement of the heavily travelled highway between Barrie and Camp Borden.

Mrs. Payette's car was travelling at 50 or 55 miles per hour at the time. Hers was the leading car in a long cavalcade carrying the prime minister's party, preceded by an Ontario provincial police cruiser. The speed limit is 50.

The party was attempting to make up time to try to get back on to schedule.

The cavalcade was en route to Camp Borden where a chartered Trans-Canada Airlines plane was waiting to fly the party to London, Ont., where Mr. St. Laurent addressed an evening meeting.

Cars well back in the cavalcade sometimes had to travel 65 and 70 miles an hour to catch up with the leading cars, when trucks or other traffic held them back.

New Drive on Traffic Deaths In Full Swing Across Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A new drive aimed at halting the spiraling traffic death toll is developing across Canada.

The campaign, spurred by 3,184 traffic deaths in the nation last year, is being carried out mainly by traffic engineers and legislators.

They're searching for methods of reducing what seems to be an inevitable yearly increase in fatalities.

Records show a rise in fatalities this year of about 5 per cent over last year.

Already this year 680 persons have been killed in highway mishaps.

The 1956 death toll of 3,184

compared to 2,650 fatalities in 1955.

In 1956, 73,594 persons were injured.

The nation has more than 4,000,000 vehicles, a record high, and they are being used more than ever before.

RECORD HIGHS

Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and New Brunswick all reported records in both registration and accident fatalities in 1956, and expect this year's figures will be still higher.

Ontario, which has the most cars, killed 1,180 persons.

In B.C. the toll was 309.

In most areas, the unprecedented rise in the number of motor vehicles has so far outstripped road building that traffic engineers describe more than 40 per cent of the roads as "intolerable."

AIM FOR UNIFORMITY

Authorities in both Canada and the United States have been working for the last 25 years to establish uniformity of education and road conditions.

They have sought to standardize roads, highway signs, legislation and education.

In March this year British Columbia passed a new Highway Traffic Act which adapts the uniform vehicle code recommended by the national committee on uniformity of traffic laws and ordinances in Washington.

Ontario, too, has revised its laws to come more in line with the general pattern. Fines were increased, and minimum levels of insurance set.

Nevertheless, fatalities to the end of April were up almost 17 per cent over the first third of last year.

On the Prairies, Manitoba has adopted strict testing, severe discipline and continued education.

Nevertheless, 1956, which increased registration, set a fatality record of 146, up 45 from the previous year.

The Saskatchewan legislature this year passed a law requiring motorists to submit to breath tests when suspected of drunken driving. Fatalities for the first third of this year are more than three times as high as the same period last year.

Monday. Most flights are booked solid.

EXTRA BUSES

A few cabin reservations were still available for night sailings and there was some car space still unreserved.

Vancouver Island Coach lines put on extra buses this morning and expects to use up to eight extras over the weekend.

"This is the start of the one-day excursions to and from Vancouver," an official stated. "A couple of busloads of Vancouverites are expected to arrive here via the Nanaimo ferry route on Monday."

WHALEN CHARGES REJECTED

IWA Vote Legal, Result 'Clear-Cut'

Jack MacKenzie, president of Vancouver and District Labor Council.

Said Mr. MacKenzie: "No grounds exist for protest. In their bitter disappointment the unsuccessful candidates have overlooked the fact that quibbling over minor technicalities will not alter a clear-cut decision made by a large majority."

Approximately 34,000 B.C. IWA members were eligible to vote.

"Tabulation was conducted with strict impartiality and in accordance with constitutional regulations prescribed."

Joe Morris was re-elected president of district 1, IWA, defeating Mr. Whalen, president of Vancouver and District Labor Council.

FESTIVE FOWL FILCHED AT CROFTON HOTEL FETE

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP)—A rebuilt Crofton Hotel was opened here Thursday night, and all went well until gate-crashers made off with the festive fowl.

The large turkey, partly dissected, eventually was rescued by a flustered waitress who found it being devoured by two men.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan and Mayor J. T. Dobson of Duncan officially opened the remodelled landmark.

Ash Calls for Quick Action On Joint Centennial Project

Saanich Reeve Arthur Ash today called for an immediate meeting of the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee to renew talks on a unified permanent memorial project for Greater Victoria. His action followed an official decision by the B.C. Centennial Committee to rule out the proposed Jubilee Hospital wing as a birthday year project aided by government per capita grants.

"Now this matter has been cleared up we have a new opportunity to join in a wholehearted attempt and decide on a Centennial project of which the whole area can be proud."

EVERLASTING

"In this regard I call on all elected representatives to forget municipal boundaries and parochial feeling and create an everlasting monument all our residents may enjoy in the future. Personally I will lend all support to a joint municipal program."

Saanich had planned to use its Centennial grant from the B.C. government toward its contribution to the Jubilee Hospital expansion program.

The committee ruled this out because the Saanich application gave no dates of commencement or completion, contained no building plans in detail and because the hospital is not located in Saanich boundaries.

MUST BE JOINT

Only if engaged on a joint project with sister municipalities would the senior committee permit a municipality to use its grant outside its own borders.

The appeal for new action already has agreement of Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

The Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, headed by Alderman Geoffrey Edgell, is now concerned with planning for 1958 celebrations. It is indicated it will be asked again to recommend a suitable joint project to the various councils.

The provincial committee has asked that all project ideas be submitted for approval before August, which could mean a busy series of meetings in the near future.

100 ATTEND

A meeting held Thursday night to co-ordinate celebrations was attended by 100 delegates from 58 local organizations.

The 10,000-member Victoria Labor Council promised to throw its full weight behind the 1958 celebrations.

VLC delegate Clifford Parker said labor is prepared to raise as much money as possible from dues-paying members as "we feel it is a year the world should know about."

He said a large Labor Day parade was being planned and bursaries and picnics are being considered.

$42,000 BUDGET

Vice-chairman of the meeting, G. K. Sammon, said that with only about $42,000 to spend over the year, it was hoped each organization would provide its own entertainment "at little or no cost to the main body."

He said a central office, probably in the City Hall, would be set up soon.

Offers to assist in the year's program were heard from representatives of several other organizations, including the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and the Canadian Folk Society.

IKE 'FOOLISH' ON SUEZ, U.K. LABORITE SAYS

LONDON (Reuters)—Emanuel Shinwell Thursday night criticized President Eisenhower's "foolish statement" that Israel is entitled to send a test ship through the Suez Canal but must not use force.

The Labor Member of Parliament and former defence minister said "President Eisenhower says and does some very foolish things and one of the most foolish is this statement."

Shinwell was speaking in the Suez debate in the House of Commons. He defied official Labor Party policy last November by defending the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt.

Lloyd to Resign On Suez Policy?

LONDON (CP)—Some political quarters suggested today that Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd may soon resign.

Their predictions followed a two-day House of Commons debate over British Suez policy, sparked by a government announcement Monday permitting British ships to use the Suez Canal. The government forces defeated an opposition censure motion at the end of the debate Thursday night by 308 votes to 259, a majority of 49.

A bitter attack on Lloyd by Aneurin Bevan featured Labor participation in the debate. He labelled Lloyd "a monkey" dancing to the tune of "organ-grinder" Macmillan. He said the Conservative policy on Suez nearly split the Commonwealth.

Lloyd was booed by Labor Opposition members during the debate. He was foreign secretary under Sir Anthony Eden at the time of the Anglo-French intervention in Egypt last fall.

Fiesta—Don't Invite Death

FOR THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE, young and old, in this community Victoria Day festivities started after school or work today. They will continue until Monday night with special events arranged for public entertainment.

This is an occasion for widespread enjoyment. It is a fiesta time.

But unless there is a change in the pattern of driving, it threatens to be a weekend of tragedy for some of our people.

The three-day holiday will bring crowds onto the highways, coming to attractions in this city or going from Victoria to other destinations. The sheer volume of traffic creates its own hazards and calls for special precaution on the part of drivers.

They have had, in the last few days, a graphic example of what speed can do on the road.

In Italy this week the press and public cried out in anger against the senseless slaughter involved in the Mille Miglia, a famous—or infamous—car road race.

During the event a driver gunned his machine to try to improve his position near the finish line. A tire blew. The car struck a stone milepost which, along with the machine, hurtled into spectators. Thirteen people were killed.

The outcry against races which produce such results—and the Mille Miglia, like the banned Le Mans race has a shocking record—is understandable. The public justifiably seeks to have them stopped.

There may be no comparable races in Canada. But this country can ill afford to point a finger at such events.

During the four-day New Year's holiday this year 27 people were killed on Canadian highways. The provincial motor vehicle branch has just announced the highway toll in British Columbia for the first quarter of 1957. It records 53 deaths against 41 for the similar period last year.

Canada, it appears, needs no Mille Miglia. It can establish its own records with no incentive but an inborn craze by some people for speed and a corresponding irresponsibility on the road.

This Victoria Day weekend stands as a test and a challenge.

Will the drivers of Canada, British Columbia and this community make it a safe-driving period? Or are we to look forward to a driving insanity which makes the road races of Europe relatively innocuous? Only the drivers can answer those questions.

Unfinished Business

BRITAIN'S DECISION A FEW days ago to permit ships under the United Kingdom flag to use the Suez Canal, paying tolls under President Nasser's terms, appeared in one sense to close the "Suez incident."

Almost all the maritime nations are now using the canal, the revenue is being collected and used in conformity with the program of operation which the Egyptian leader recently filed with the United Nations, and it seems to be a case of business as usual between the Mediterranean and Red seas.

But while the actual traffic problem of the Suez has been answered for the moment, Colonel Nasser cannot assume that his troubles are over. Indeed, his real troubles may be just starting.

Most imminent of them is the proposed Israeli plan to attempt to send a cargo ship through the canal if the Security Council cannot solve the impasse.

Israeli ships are barred from transit by President Nasser on the grounds that a state of war exists between Egypt and Israel, and that the Suez Canal Convention of 1888 permits him to exclude ships which might threaten the security of Egypt. He says today that he will take "all measures" to assure Egyptian security.

Israel, on the other hand, quotes the convention to the effect that the Canal shall be open to the ships of all nations "in time of war as in time of peace." There is also the question as to whether a state of war actually exists between the two countries.

The suggested test with an Israeli ship has brought warnings of world war from Syria. Egypt has warned that the ship will not be allowed to enter Egyptian waters, much less the Canal. But Britain and the United States both favor the plan, provided it is carried out peacefully.

This, then, is the most immediate challenge facing President Nasser. A second one lies in the proposal to build an oil pipeline that would by-pass the Canal. This project is announced by 17 of the world's leading oil companies as an effort to supplement rather than displace existing facilities, but the object is obvious: to secure the West's oil supplies against interference. Such a move would greatly affect canal traffic and revenues.

France's request to the United Nations Security Council for an early debate on the Canal situation likewise raises the prospect of continued controversy. The United Nations emergency force continues to separate Egyptian and Israeli forces along the Gaza frontier. No prospect of a settlement is in sight.

But perhaps the most ominous question mark of all that hangs over President Nasser's plans is that inherent in the split in Arab ranks. Arising from the recent near-revolution in Jordan which was fomented by Egyptian and communist agents, and aggravated by the exposure of similar Egyptian intrigues in Saudi Arabia, a division has occurred which finds Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Iraq at odds with Egypt, Syria, Iran and other Arabic states.

There is sufficient potential trouble in this situation to tax all Colonel Nasser's abilities. Overnight his plans for a pan-Arabic empire may topple from the brink on which they now stand. But the effects may be much more far-reaching than that.

A wrong move in the tense Middle Eastern situation could plunge the whole area—and the world—into war. It could come from the Israeli effort to pass through the Canal. It could come from some new development in Jordan, from a desperate effort by Colonel Nasser to recoup losses, or an entirely new outbreak in an area that is under the heavy pressure of continuing economic and social revolution.

The "Suez incident" cannot therefore be written off as completely finished. Too much is at stake in that quarter of the globe for peace to be considered secure.

Now There Are Three

WITH THE EXPLOSION OF A "nuclear device" in the south Pacific, Britain has become one of the three powers in the world which are armed with the hydrogen bomb; has vastly increased its defenses, particularly as a deterrent to possible aggressors; and in the cause of disarmament has, as Prime Minister Macmillan says in a classic understatement, put itself in a "better bargaining position."

This week's test was the first of a series, which the British Government announces will be continued despite protests. The explosion was set off at an unusually high altitude in an effort to keep radioactive fallout to a minimum. The practical effectiveness of this procedure has not yet been fully assessed.

In any event Britain considers that national security, indeed world security, necessitates the tests, and in view of United States and Russian possession of the hydrogen bomb and the many tests carried out by these countries, the British case is well founded.

This does not answer the ultimate question, however, of how many such explosions the globe can safely stand. Amid the conflicting opinions of the experts it is obvious that each explosion releases dangerous radioactive material, that this material continues active for a very long time and that hence the danger is cumulative.

The end result is clear: sooner or later the radioactivity will reach a point where the health and lives of the world's populations are immediately threatened. The date of that event may remain a matter of controversy but the principle is not to be denied.

This is not an argument for Britain's abandonment of tests on a unilateral basis. But it is certainly an argument—and an imperative one—for international agreement on disarmament before it is too late. Britain's acquisition of the bomb may, indeed, speed that agreement. If aggression means suicide there can be little need to maintain large offensive forces.

The Murderer at Dawn

AS A voter I hope I am not ungrateful to the politicians who promise to increase our public expenditures by hundreds of millions while reducing taxes still more. But to tell the truth, I am not much interested in governmental finance at this season or in candidates for office. I am interested in weevils, caterpillars, earwigs and leaf curlers.

It is useless for Mr. Diefenbaker to promise me—or any gardener more spending and less taxes; useless for Mr. Low to out-promise Mr. Diefenbaker; useless even for Mr. Skillings to cure the ills of society in his newspaper column (as if columnists could cure anything).

No, what we need this spring is a cure for other forms of pest. Any politician can fix a simple thing like the national budget but the candidate who can fix cut-worms will get my vote even if he is a communist.

YEARS ago it was good fun to garden in these parts. The soil about here was virgin and innocent then, like the mind of the electorate.

That was before the late Mrs. Hugel Beathorp brought a bouquet of chrysanthemums over from Vancouver and secreted within it our first earwigs that multiplied even more rapidly than election promises.

That was before the native weevils discovered our gardens, perceived a vision of the more abundant life and life and died at an early age on a universal old-age pension with children's allowances and the fringe benefits of prime rose roots. That was also before the leaf curlers and caterpillars unbalanced the budget of the orchard.

LIKE politics, gardening was primitive in those times. A man of ordinary intelligence, even a voter, could plant seeds and reap crops without a college degree in chemistry and a certificate in poison. Today the gardener must be a chemist and a poisoner or he will not long survive.

He is not, in fact, a gardener. He is a professional murderer. He no longer enjoys growing things but spends his time killing things. The green thumb is quite insignificant nowadays. A man must have a red hand.

FOR example, I arose betimes yesterday morning to watch the rosy dawn and to smell the first sharp perfume of vegetation under the touch of dew. It was indeed a lovely sight. In the sun's slanting rays all the leaves of the peach trees were curled up, bloated and withered under the invisible spores of disease. The downy nests of tent caterpillars waved gently in the breeze. The young lettuce sprouts were tastefully chewed into intricate, lace-like patterns by the earwigs. And over this brooding scene of peace hung the clean, natural aroma of chemical spray, lime, sulphur and arsenic dust.

That evening, the sweet springtime air of Canada was filled like fairy land from coast to coast with the lively tinkle of politicians' voices but I regret to say that I did not hear them.

FOR I was standing on a ladder, far from the ground, removing diseased peach leaves one by one, and if I had been paid a dollar, or even a quarter for each leaf I would have had enough money to finance all the opposition parties' promises. Instead, I burned those leaves in my incinerator at dusk—an accurate symbol, I thought, of public finance in this election.

A voter, if he is strong and deaf enough, can stand the election but I am getting tired of gardening in the age of insects, spores and viruses. I don't mind the politicians pumping up our emotions but I am weary of pumping poison on rose bushes. I can endure the fumes of politics but the reek of chemicals is getting me down. Once I was a gardener and now I am a trained and dedicated assassin.

MY tool shed, like the dungeons of the Spanish Inquisition, is filled with the tools and engines of torture. My cupboard of cunning poisons would put a Borgia to shame. All the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. A garden is a loathsome thing. God wot.

To this, then, has the old art of Adam fallen in our time. Eden is turned into a chemist's shop and, if a man is lucky, his Eve has become a killer of caterpillars with her bare hands.

It is enough to make a man flee from the soil to the garden of politics where everything grows luxuriantly, no weeds of deficit ever rear their ugly heads, no spores of inflation are ever known and no promise ever fails to bloom in scarlet splendor on succulent stalks ten feet high.

As Our Readers See It

The Waiter's Position

As a waiter I can not see why when a minor comes into a beer parlor or a cocktail lounge that the waiter be held responsible.

There are signs in all hotels as to age limits. Yet these minors come into the hotels every day in the week and are sometimes successful in getting served.

We have had a waiter fined $300 or 90 days hard labor on account of a minor in uniform. Yet this minor himself was only fined $25.

In court not long ago a minor was charged with coming out of the Liquor Store with a case of beer and was fined $15. Did the chap that served this sailor get fined $300 for 12 bottles of beer? If so it has never been mentioned.

My livelihood is made as a waiter working 40 hours a week for $56 a week. I have a family to keep and if I happen to serve a minor I have to put out $300. Where, in my case, would I get this and where, in the case of May 15, 1957, is the waiter going to get his fine?

We are hired as waiters and try to please our employer by keeping a clean house, free of trouble, but it seems to me we'd better go and get a private detective's licence also.

Here's hoping we can get some action on this item.

A HOPEFUL WAITER.

Old Age Pensions

My letter of April 29 re paying O.A.P. outside of Canada, has brought me comments by letter, phone and personal talks, and I have been asked to write again, dealing with other complaints of pensioners who feel that the $6 raise, is already very much the Irishman's raise.

I would like again to make it clear that my writing is really an appeal to all candidates of all parties that, in this and other matters of Social Welfare legislation, they will have a free vote. The Prime Minister has stated that his back benchers would have this.

We shall see. Don't let us forget. From several sources, I have been informed that several pensioners will have less for actual living, food, etc., than they had when the pension was first given. They have been given notice of an advance in their rent already. The modern Shylocks have already taken another pound of flesh. Many readers will know a Bible quotation, that apply and rather sarcastically applies.

The rent raise added to the increased cost of living, leaves many pensioners worse off than when the $40 was first granted.

In some cases it may hit harder the pensioner whose income is just a little too much to pass the means test and get the additional benefits. These people are worried about doctors' bills, high costs of medicine, and an operation is a real calamity.

Finally, and I want to stress this point, pensioners with limited incomes, cannot afford the medical attention that they need here. (Don't blame the doctors, they have to live too.)

Back in Britain, the best of medical attention would be theirs—free.

The cost of this is carried by all the people, in all the walks of life, as it should be here.

What have the candidates to say about this and how would they deal with the Shylock landlords.

JOSEPH KNIGHT.

Power Mowers

Regarding the news item on accidents with power-mowers; we felt that the article was not entirely clear. It leaves the impression that all power-mowers are dangerous. Investigation would show that almost all the accidents are caused by rotary blade type power-mowers.

Accidents with the conventional reel-type power-mowers are extremely rare and this is one of the reasons that we, as lawn mower repair men, generally recommend the reel-type power-mowers over the rotary type.

THE WESTERN TOUR

By VIC MACKIE

The P.M. Meets the People

PRIME Minister Louis St. Laurent was following a simple strategy when he made his election tour through the west. His strategy was to raise no issues, present his government's record in factual straightforward speeches, emphasize the prosperity the country is enjoying and leave the clear impression that if Canadians want good times to continue, they should vote Liberal and re-elect his government.

This was no fighting politician, storming across the country in search of votes with a headline-making campaign. This was the confident Mr. St. Laurent, crossing the west at a reasonable pace, delivering speeches that had been well worked-over by his speech writers, pausing here and there to address a gathering of children, kissing babies, and at whistle-stops delivering a little fatherly talk on the wonderful country that is Canada, or a grandfatherly lecture to the youngsters on the merits of our parliamentary system.

This was the Prime Minister in the role he appears to like best, the role of a fatherly or grandfatherly gentleman with kindly manner and a consciousness of children that communicates itself to the youngsters.

Familiar Terms

There is no doubt about it the kids like him. They laugh at his little jokes, listen seriously as the Prime Minister becomes serious. He talks in terms they can understand.

But what has this got to do with winning votes? Well the Prime Minister has a theory. It is a theory he has put to the test on the hustings before and it has apparently worked well.

His theory is that if you make a hit with the kids, their parents and other adults will decide that you are a fellow who can be trusted. If the kids instinctively like you then you can depend upon it most of the adults will like you too and count you a fine fellow.

The Prime Minister likes to get away from Ottawa during the election campaigns and cross the country, preferably by train, so that he can get out at whistle stops and see and be seen. The more people who are able to see him, the more, he is convinced, he will be able to persuade to trust him with the handling of the people's affairs for another five years.

Mr. St. Laurent has little patience with the tremendous new medium of television. His aides have a hard time selling him on the idea that by talking at a camera and microphone he can appeal to 2,000,000 voters. He would prefer to address a small gathering of 200 at first-hand.

He was much more at ease off the platform than on. When he was on the platform at major political rallies he was reading texts of speeches carefully prepared. Sometimes in the halls the lighting was poor and he stumbled over the wording. The reaction at the formal meetings was one of attentiveness at the outset and near boredom at the close.

Mr. St. Laurent was obviously reading speeches he had not written. His aides said that he worked on them with his speech writers and read them over before the meeting. But many key paragraphs appeared to him when he came to read them. Sometimes he would miss out an important word-leaving those in the audience who were following his words closely, more than slightly confused.

Friendly Reception

And yet for all the dullness of the speeches the audiences appeared to listen. Certainly at the beginning of the meeting they were eagerly attentive. Some had lost their eagerness and attention two-thirds of the way through the speech. But the audiences were overwhelmingly friendly.

Even when he was heckled as he was at Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria, the heckling was in a spirit of good humor. Only once did the Prime Minister lose his temper, that was when he snapped back at hecklers at Edmonton.

It was at Edmonton that he was first heckled and Mr. St. Laurent was obviously somewhat taken aback. He retorted with verbal clubs that lambasted his hecklers into complete submission. They were not heard from again during the meeting.

At the outset of the campaign Mr. St. Laurent was a prisoner of his text. But on the swing back eastward into Saskatchewan he began using his text as a framework on which to build his speeches.

Off the Cuff

He would look up at the audience and elaborate on statements in the text. Thus it was that he made a much more lengthy statement on the possibility of the South Saskatchewan dam being built, than was contained in the advance text of his address in Saskatoon. Wherever he went in the west Mr. St. Laurent spoke against splinter parties. He left behind the clear impression that a vote for splinter groups was a wasted vote. He questioned the wisdom of supporting any party other than the Liberals or the official opposition, the Progressive Conservatives.

"Why not get on the winning side?" was the query he posed for audiences in provinces such as Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, where the Social Credit and CCF movements have strong followings. And always wherever he went he preached Canadian unity.

The Sample Poll

From The Ottawa Citizen

IT is natural that Mr. John Diefenbaker should, in the course of his wanderings, be drawing attention to the quite substantial swing to the Conservatives in Ontario indicated in the latest poll taken by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion.

In this province, at the moment, they are shown as the leading party in the race for federal seats. This is something quite different from the results of previous polls and from the actual results in 1953.

There are 85 seats at stake in Ontario. Mr. Diefenbaker must do well here even in order to muster an opposition group as large as the 67 that came to Ottawa in 1945 under the leadership of Mr. John Bracken when the total Commons membership was 245 instead of the 265 of today.

In that year the Conservatives took 48 seats in Ontario. But the best they could manage in any other province was five (in British Columbia).

The new poll actually suggests a drop in Conservative support in all the main regions except Ontario, since the last sampling of opinion about two months ago. For the country as a whole, the Conservatives appear to have the same proportion of support as in February, and one percentage point better than in the general election of 1953.

The campaign is still young, but at the moment it is difficult to detect any signs of an outstanding Conservative success. Indeed, two of the obstacles to that success look as formidable as ever. These are the solidity of Liberal strength in Quebec, and the influence of the CCF and Social Credit in the West.

The poll shows Conservative support in Quebec and the four western provinces as identical—an unimpressive 20 per cent.

Raging Toothache—But Soon

MY dentist friends tell me British Columbia may wake up in the middle of the night soon with a raging toothache and find no more relief than it can get from hollering.

We aren't, they say, turning out enough dentists. And we can't hope to until a faculty of dentistry is established at the University of British Columbia.

It isn't that enough of our young men don't want to take up the profession. They do. Only there aren't enough training colleges to accommodate them—either in Canada or the United States.

Last year 37 students equipped themselves at UBC to enter dental colleges and only 10 were able to gain admission. This year there are 54 pre-dental students in the same position. One of them has applied to seven colleges—one as far away as Texas—without success. By the beginning of next term eight to 12 may be accepted.

And in no case do the B.C. pre-dents lack qualification for higher study.

There was a time when local boys, with satisfactory secondary education or a year or two of Victoria College training, could step on the Seattle boat and head for North Pacific College at Portland with virtual assurance that they'd be welcomed as students. Or they could travel east and work for their sheepskins in dental surgery at the University of Toronto.

LOOKING AFTER THEIR OWN

Now North Pacific College has been converted into the dental faculty of the University of Oregon. That institution is state subsidized. Oregon taxpayers naturally demand first consideration for Oregon boys who want to study there. The result is a "no vacancy" sign for British Columbians.

I guess a young man from Victoria could still get in if he took up Portland residence, U.S. citizenship and made an All-American football team. But all the boys in this city who want to be dentists don't qualify as All-Americans.

Stott

The assistant dean of the Oregon faculty, Dr. E. Hurley, was discussing the situation with local members of the profession the other night. He was particularly disturbed because he counted among them several men who had been in Oregon classes when entry to the Portland college was simpler. Now Canadians are crowded out by the volume of U.S. applicants.

He praised the standards of pre-dental training here and he raised an interesting question on the educational philosophy of British Columbia. In Oregon, he said, schooling specialized for dental college applicants took into consideration the fact that such preparations should lead to admission to dental colleges. He didn't quite see the sense of equipping young men for higher study and then telling them they had no place to go.

Like a lot of other Victorians, I hadn't known the situation was desperate. It hasn't seemed too difficult for me or my family to get appointments since the war.

WE'VE HAD SHORTAGES

While the fighting was going on, it was a different story. So many of the Victoria dentists were in the forces it threw a terrific load on those who stayed in civilian practice. We may not have served by only standing in waiting rooms, but we waited. I got halfway through "Gone With the Wind" under those conditions.

Maybe it could happen again, just because enough young men aren't given the chance to go into the profession of their choice. I noticed in my own dentist's office not only back numbers of the Readers' Digest, but a shelf full of history. Is this a record of the past or a forecast of the future? Am I finally going to take a course in history in my friend's waiting room while my ears are tuned for that pleasant "You're next, Mr. Stott"?

That could be a possibility. Dental faculties in Canada aren't sufficiently numerous to accommodate British Columbians—or enough of them. It looks as if we'll have to create our own faculty.

All we need is some money. Or have you heard that before from virtually all faculties, as well as housing administrators, at UBC?

Early Flowering Causes Problems

In many ways, the season is precocious. The hot sunny days and warm nights of the past week or so has caused some of the perennial herbs to come into flower long before their usual time.

How then can we wait until July before we cut sage and thyme for drying?

With the flowers suddenly advanced to the opening stage I think the best plan is to cut the flowering stems from the sage plants and allow the new side shoots to develop. These have had little chance so far, but the removal of the flower stems will encourage the young growth.

By the time the next batch of flowers begin to appear, these side growths will be ready for cutting and drying.

The thyme plants have hurried into flower too. I didn't even notice them until this week. Clipping off the flower heads with scissors will encourage new growth which may be used for drying later in the summer.

If we leave these flowering heads to mature naturally, I am afraid that many of our perennial herbs will fail to produce the leafy growth which we like to use in cooking.

Never have I seen them flower so early. Even the parsley plants of last year are hurrying into bloom and seed.

And the true lemon verbena, Lippia citriodora, is already making its tiny, ineffectual flowers (this plant does not seed).

Rosemary, usually a late May or early June flowerer, has been blooming for a couple of weeks. When the flowers fade, cut back each stem to produce new growth to flower next year.

Pear-Shaped Politicos

NEW YORK—The shape of diplomacy is sometimes difficult to divine, but the shape of diplomats is easy.

As observed here at United Nations headquarters, they are inclined either to be pear-shaped or else they are gaunt and thin as rails. Distinguished men, all, but a very ordinary-looking lot, even as you or I.

The impression of diplomats as handsome and dashing is quickly dispelled when one lives with them at close quarters in these crowded buildings, and watches them ply their trade in the General Assembly hall and the committee rooms.

To quite an extent they hold the fate of the world in their hands, but they are very ordinary mortals. To talk to them is to realize that in a great many cases they have no better information than you or I, and it gives one the same feeling as when the family doctor who is also the family friend admits that he is somewhat at sea in trying to diagnose the illness of a loved one. You wish that they would convey more of an impression of experts who know infinitely more than they will admit, and that they have the situation well in hand.

CUTS ACROSS RACE AND CREED

Paunchiness is everywhere in evidence among the delegations, and this characteristic cuts across the lines of race and creed. Among the Western delegations a ruddiness of complexion is frequently encountered, which is due more to the hazards of the diplomatic cocktail circuit than to sunburn.

Lynch

Looking down at the General Assembly in solemn session one sees clearly that baldness is no respecter of national or even hemispheric boundaries. Shiny pates abound on all sides of the House, and the fortune that awaits the inventor of a cure will clearly be global in scope.

ASHTRAYS PERPETUALLY STUFFED

Diplomats are heavy smokers, and the ashtrays are perpetually stuffed with butts. There are cigar and pipe addicts in about equal numbers, and one frequenter of these halls favors a pipe with a cigar stuffed into it—thus enjoying two vices with every puff.

There is usually a sprinkling of bow ties in evidence, from the narrow-string variety to the "full Pearsonian," named after the wide and fulsome bows favored by Canada's minister for external affairs. The largest bow ever seen here was that sported by the Prime Minister of Ceylon, Mr. Bandaranieke, who wore it against a gay Tattersall shirt.

To go back to the general paunchiness of UN delegates, one must make an exception of the leader of the United States delegation, Henry Cabot Lodge, who despite a rather pronounced stoop is a fine figure of a man, and stands out in this company as Sir Anthony Eden must have done in the days when he earned his reputation as the world's most handsome diplomat.

Perhaps the answer to this problem would be to dismantle the bar in the delegates' lounge and replace it with a gymnasium, together with a steam room and massage parlor. A shattering thought—and one which moves us to propel our own ample girth in the direction of the lounge in quest of a dram, purely for medicinal purposes, of course.

LEARN ABOUT VICTORIA

Conducted Tour Convinces Many Citizens They Don't Know City

Do you know your city?

Over 75 Victorians, after taking a conducted tour of the city Thursday, are convinced today that most people are not fully aware of the beauty spots and historical attractions in and around Greater Victoria.

The tour was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce to familiarize Victorians with some of the city's main attractions.

Three buses took the "citizen-tourists" to points of interest in all four municipalities.

The Victorians, many of them who have lived here all their lives, all agreed that the tour was an eye-opener.

"I was impressed," said Mrs. Ken Lowndes. "Most of the things I had already seen but never realized their significance."

She said she saw things from a "different angle"—attractions which did not draw her attention before.

P. D. Crofton was more specific: "I've directed many tourists to Helmcken House, but did not know until yesterday where the house was actually situated."

Mrs. A. Stewart recommended conducted bus tours to all Victorians as a means of getting acquainted with the city's attractions.

"You will see things differently from a bus than from a car," she said.

Sam Lane, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group, said the tour was a "big success" and convinced the group that the city had plenty to offer its visitors.

He said some of the attractions which impressed the citizens most were evergreen hedges on Rockland Avenue, the new Lansdowne subdivision with its rock gardens, the Chinese bell at Beacon Hill Park.

They were surprised at the historic interest in and around Wharf Street," he said. "It was only after they had certain things pointed out to them that they realized the attractions in that area."

The tour is part of a chamber campaign to make citizens take more interest in their historic places and beauty spots so they can assist and impress visitors there is plenty to see in Victoria.

The chamber is anxious to retain a share of the more than 1,000,000 tourists that enter and leave Vancouver Island each summer.

"If citizens co-operate we can keep our visitors here for an extra day," said Russ Jeffs, assistant manager of the chamber. "If we know our city, part of the battle is won."

Argyle Tells His Views on Road Sweeper

Esquimalt public works committee chairman Coun. George Argyle today replied to "constant rabid statements" about municipal rental of a street-sweeper from his firm, Esquimalt Service Ltd.

In a prepared statement he said: "... Over the past few years Esquimalt has constructed about 30 miles of curb and surface drains. We were successful once a few years ago in renting the city sweeper at $12 per hour to sweep our main street but since then we have had to hand-sweep as much as was possible."

Because "it was obviously urgent that sand be swept up before it was carried into our surface drains," Coun. Argyle said he flew to Seattle to secure a machine a few hours before a scheduled auction.

"DISTORTED HISTORY"
The machine was imported in the name of Esquimalt Service, he said, and "the rest is well-chewed and distorted history."

Although the machine was serviced and tested by the municipal engineer and offered to the municipality "at cost," it was refused, he said.

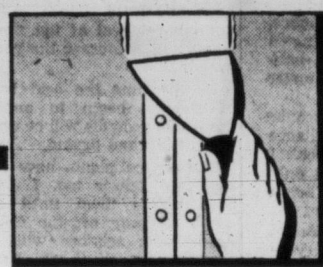

Later, however, the machine was rented by the municipality and "payment for the rental... for the work done is a relatively insignificant item."

Cost of renting the street-sweeper in March was $612. Finance committee chairman Coun. J. E. Carey said earlier this week he will recommend to council that payment be deferred until the bill is "cut in half."

FOUNDER HONORED
VANCOUVER—The Western Rehabilitation Centre is to change its name to commemorate its founder, Dr. G. F. Strong.

Directors said Thursday the centre, which specializes in the treatment of the disabled, would be known as the G. F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre.

Dr. Strong died earlier this year at the age of 60.

Alarm System Not Factor In Mansion Fire

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said today the fire marshal's report into the Government House fire made no special recommendations on the alarm system.

"There was nothing significant in this regard," Mr. Bonner said.

The fire marshal's report is not made public, but the attorney-general said previously it had stated there was no evidence of arson.

Following the fire, there were reports that valuable time was lost because a special alarm box in Government House was not used.

Picket lines were set up immediately. No incidents were reported.

Expectations are that workers at other company plants in Shawinigan Falls, Ile Maligne and Beauharnois will follow suit. The company employs about 10,000 workers in the four plants.

The union said continuation of the talks would be "useless" since the company would not accept its demand for a master contract to cover all provincial establishments.

He will monitor the operations and use protective devices when necessary.

Joe Morris Re-Elected by IWA; Opponent Alleges Violations

VANCOUVER (CP) — Joe Morris has been re-elected president of District 1 of the International Woodworkers of America but his main opponent said Thursday he will refer the matter to the international president because of alleged ballot violations.

Lloyd Whalen, president of Local 1217, condemned the manner in which he said the district tabulating committee "disregarded former practices and precedents."

Whalen had campaigned vigorously to unseat Morris, who was first elected in 1953.

Whalen was supported by two other large locals in a stormy three-hour meeting held in protest against the alleged irregularities.

Joe Madden, president of Local 1357, New Westminster, and

E. Del Rio, of 1-367, Haney, supported Whalen.

Whalen and his backers head local unions with more than 13,000 IWA members. More than 35,000 members voted.

Madden, first vice-president-elect, and Stu Hodgson, second vice-president by acclamation, declined to be obligated as district officers until the Whalen-inspired protest is investigated by the international president.

PGE to Give Passengers Preference

(The Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER—The Pacific Great Eastern Railway announced Thursday that passengers will get precedence over freight in an attempt to provide faster service.

Passenger and freight trains will run separately, to avoid delay to passenger trains often held up by freight loading, officials said.

The announcement came after a Woodliffe resident complained of trains being up to three hours late. The change will go into effect June 1.

CITY FIGHTS BUSH FIRE

VANCOUVER—Firemen fought a smoldering fire on bushland south of the city for the third day Thursday.

"This is a tough one to fight—it keeps breaking out in different spots," said a fire department officer.

The fire is burning on a tract of land to the east of the city dump on southeast Marine Drive.

TUNNEL READY BY '59

VANCOUVER—Traffic is scheduled to begin using the Deas Island tunnel, 60 feet below the Fraser River, by the spring of 1959, engineers said in a report Thursday.

Flirtin' Frogs Do Many Things — Even Keep Pigs Slim on the Farm

By JAMES BAAR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — The National Geographic Society came out today with a confidential expose on the bedroom habits of frogs.

The hush-hush facts turned out to be far worse than many frog haters believed.

The usually staid geographic society apparently felt compelled to disclose the wanton truth because of the cavorting of a crowd of suburban Washington frogs in Brentwood, Md. Eighty-three-year-old Mrs. Mary Harman complained several weeks ago to Brentwood Mayor William H. Smith that the frogs in a neighbor's pond were "disorderly and carrying on" every night until midnight. The mayor—clearly a romantic—said he liked frogs.

However, the geographic society made clear in its expose that Mrs. Harman had something to complain about.

It said each species of boy frog uses a distinctive mating call during the springtime to attract the girl frogs of the same species. It noted that frogs are very particular about what species they date.

"Some calls resemble the sounds of quacking ducks, barking dogs, bleating goats, whooping Indians or a regiment of men beating tin pans," it said.

Of course, the society said, this goes on until the boys and girls get together.

But that's not all.

The society said night-prowling researchers armed with tape recorders have reported four other types of frog noises besides the mating call. It described them as the "warning chirp, warning vibration, fright scream and rain song."

"The last is a singing-in-the-shower type of thing apparently just for fun," it said.

The society said spooning frogs have been accused of lots of things including keeping a Missouri farmer's hogs slim.

"Every time that blamed bull-frog gives out with a bellow the pigs think it's someone calling them to eat," the farmer said. "They're running all the fat off their bones answering his call."

On the other hand, the society said, many people agree with Mayor Smith.

TWO BIRDS OF FEATHER FLEE TOGETHER

LAKE LAND, Fla. (UP)—James Mansfield, 50, serving 30 days for drunkenness, escaped over the stockade fence Thursday.

While police were chasing him, Mansfield returned to the stockade in a pickup truck and picked up his buddy, William Cawthon, also 50, and serving an identical sentence.

Police now are looking for both of them.

SMILING, BUT DOES HE MEAN IT?

Taking batting practice before Thursday's game at Yankee Stadium, New York Yankees' outfielder Hank Bauer was still able to manage a sickly smile despite fact he is facing $250,000 damage suit arising out of his alleged off-field slugging. Bauer and five other Yankees were involved in a night-club fracas, and a patron, claiming he was slugged and injured by Bauer, has threatened to file damage suit. Bauer denies throwing punches. (Wirephoto.)

Martin's Next Party May Be in Washington

NEW YORK (UPI) — Billy Martin, Casey Stengel's "boy," has fallen out of grace with his New York Yankee bosses, and because of his part in the Hank Bauer night club brawl may be headed for Washington in a multi-player deal.

Martin, Bauer and four other Yankee players faced stern disciplinary measures by Stengel for staying out beyond the curfew prescribed for "good" ball players while celebrating Martin's 29th birthday until the early hours of Thursday morning.

The climax of the party was the slugging of Edwin Jones, a 42-year-old delicatessen owner. Jones claims the slugging was done by Bauer and threatens suit of $250,000. Bauer denies it and the Yankee management believes him. But Stengel and the top brass are infuriated at the after-hours partying. They feel that Martin is the ring-leader in these bright-spot escapades. And sources close to the Yankees believe they are ready to deal Martin away, even though he long was regarded as Stengel's favorite player.

A reliable report had Martin, Andy Carey, Norm Siebern, Al Cicotte and a Yankee farmhand going to the Senators for Eddie Yost and a pitcher—either Camilo Pascual or Pedro Ramos. President Cal Griffith of the Senators is willing. And Charley Dressen, front office assistant, was due in New York today to talk business.

Hockey Master Dick Irvin Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—Dick Irvin, grand master of the barbed word and unusual hockey strategy, died at his home here Thursday night.

He was 64 and death came after a lingering illness that forced him to give up the game he loved late in 1956. He had spent considerable time in hospital since then.

A minor operation and frequent blood transfusions failed to stem the illness. But his sickness never dulled the dry wit that made him a favorite with his colleagues and sports reporters.

Irvin, slim and silver-haired, spent 27 seasons in the National Hockey League as a coach—three with Chicago, nine with Toronto and 15 with Montreal. He won four Stanley Cups, three in Montreal and one in Toronto. Only four times did teams he coached finish out of the playoffs.

Irvin was an outstanding player before becoming a coach—a centre who could stickhandle smoothly and fire a hard, accurate shot. He spent most of his playing days in Western Canada and on the Pacific coast. He didn't play in the National Hockey League until he was 34 but even then missed out on the league scoring title by only one point.

Just Missed NHL Scoring Crown

His full name was James Dickinson Irvin—not Richard Irvin as many thought—and he was born at Limestone Ridge, Ont., near Hamilton, July 19, 1892. His family moved to Winnipeg when he was seven and it was in Western Canada that he became known as an outstanding player.

He broke into hockey with Winnipeg Strathcona Juniors, a team that was without a league and played only challenge games. In 1912, he was summoned to help the intermediate Winnipeg Monarchs when a player was injured and scored six of the team's 10 goals in the next two games.

He turned professional with Portland Rosebuds in the Pacific Coast League in 1915-16 but the First World War interrupted his career and he served with the Fort Garry Horse, a Winnipeg regiment.

On his return he was reinstated as an amateur and played with Regina Vics before again joining pro ranks with Regina Caps. He was back with Portland in 1925-26 and the next season the team was moved intact to Chicago.

A rookie in the NHL at 34, he scored 18 goals and 18 assists during the 1926-27 season. His 18 assists led the league but he was edged for the scoring championship by Bill Cook of New York, who had 37 points.

Skull Fracture Ended Playing Career

Irvin was in his second season in the NHL when Red Dutton of the New York Americans, who later became president, checked him to the ice. Irvin's skull was fractured and his playing days were over.

He was named coach of the Black Hawks and got them into the playoffs in both seasons at the helm. In 1931-32, he joined Toronto, guiding them to the Stanley Cup in his first season as coach. He stayed in Toronto for nine years, finally leaving to become coach of the Canadiens, helping them to three Stanley Cups.

Although illness started to slow him down in the Stanley Cup playoffs of 1955, Irvin couldn't resist the challenge to rebuild the Chicago Black Hawks, the team with which he had entered the league.

He coached the Hawks through 1955-56 but had to retire at the start of the 1956-57 season.

Leading officials of the hockey world paid tribute to Irvin Thursday night.

Clarence Campbell, president of the NHL, described him as "one of the greatest figures the game has ever known."

Leo Dandurand, president of the Montreal Alouettes football team and former owner of the Canadiens, said "he was a dedicated hockey man, a great competitor as a player and an outstanding coach."

Tch, Tch—Such Doings In Majors

Pitchers Have Ball As Batters Suffer

By United Press

It's a slugger's era but those long-suffering pitchers have their days and nights, too. And a few more like yesterday will have the hitters asking who took the rabbit out of the lively ball.

It was almost as if the umpires slipped a collection of the old dead balls into play as the following pitching feats were accomplished:

1. Bob Turley, a last-minute replacement for Whitey Ford, pitched a four-hitter and started the season's first triple play to give the New York Yankees a 3-0 victory over the Kansas City Athletics. The New York staff now has a 2.71 earned run average for 24 games.

2. Sandy Koufax, 21-year-old bonus whiz, equalled the season's single game high of 13 strikeouts and yielded four hits in powering the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 3-2 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

3. Lindy McDaniel, 21-year-old St. Louis Cardinal bonus boy, flipped a four-hitter and gained his first major league shutout with a 5-0 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

4. Bob Friend, scoring his first victory since April 28, scattered seven hits in pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 win over the Milwaukee Braves.

5. Jim Bunning struck out Ted Williams three times and hurled a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox, 2-1.

6. Billy Pierce yielded three homers but had an eight-hitter for his fifth win in the Chicago White Sox' 8-3 triumph over the Washington Senators.

Fine pitching was also dominant in the other games—both of which went 10 innings. The Cincinnati Reds, taking over undisputed possession of first place in the National League, shaded the New York Giants, 3-2, and the Cleveland Indians beat the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3.

TRIPLE PLAY

Turley struck out seven and walked five behind a Yankee attack that included Mickey Mantle's sixth homer. Turley, who won his first game of the year, grabbed Alex Kellner's pop bunt after walking two batters in the second to start the triple killing and choke off Kansas City's most serious threat. It was the second straight shutout for New York.

Koufax extended the Cubs' home losing streak to eight games with a brilliant performance in which both Chicago runs were earned.

The Pirates knocked Milwaukee out of first place when Friend survived a ninth-inning rally to win his third game. Ed Matthews homered to open the ninth and Friend yielded three more hits before he finally retired the side.

Frank Bolling's home run got Detroit off in front in the first inning and he also contributed a single when the Tigers pushed over another run in the eighth. Williams doubled and scored the Red Sox' run in the ninth but his average dipped to .369.

Bubba Phillips smashed five straight hits, including a homer and triple, as the White Sox scored their fifth straight win and held first place in the American League by a half game. Two homers by Roy Sievers and one by Jim Lemon produced Washington's runs. Phillips, who entered the game with a .188 average, raised his mark to .265.

Other scorers for the winners were Frank Alexander and Doug Holmes. The sole Victoria marksman was Russ Malcolm.

Walton, Zekie Set Boxla Pace

Leaving only two goals for their teammates to share, Ron Zekie and Bill Walton scored six goals each Thursday in the Diaper Division lacrosse at Stevenson Park to lead Saanich Tigers to their second win over Victoria City, 14-1.

Other scorers for the winners were Frank Alexander and Doug Holmes. The sole Victoria marksman was Russ Malcolm.

Wargo Right Medicine ---To Make Gorge Sick

Half Way House, after slipping Gorge Hotel a second dose of Stan Wargo, has climbed into a first-place tie with the Hotelmen in the Senior A Men's Softball League.

The slender Wargo again proved an effective antidote for the poison in the Gorge bats. Half Ways came from behind to edge the defending champions, 10-9, at Central Park Thursday night.

Wargo, who blanked the hard-hitting Gorge crew, 6-0, in his last outing, took over the mound from starter Mark Cunningham in the midst of a third-inning Gorge rally. He yielded a home run to Gordie Jones then settled down to hold the slugging Hotelmen to two hits and two runs the rest of the way.

Half Ways, who collected a total of 16 hits in handing burly Ed Poychuck his first loss of the season, came from behind with four runs in the ninth frame, with Bobby Embleton's two-run single proving the key blow.

Kilburn Hopeful—'All Not Lost Yet'

The Victoria Hockey Club today withdrew from the Western Hockey League, turning its franchise back to league directors.

However, general manager-coach Colin Kilburn said that minority stockholders would take immediate steps to reform the club in an effort to save hockey for the city.

In a morning statement issued from the WHL annual meeting in Vancouver, league president Al Leader said:

"The Victoria Hockey Club Ltd. had withdrawn from the Western Hockey League.

"This act was necessitated by the fact that the majority stockholders—Lester Patrick, who owns 50 per cent, and Mrs. Nellie Hutchinson, 26 per cent owner, decided against their continued financial support of the club.

"The Victoria franchise was surrendered to the league. It is expected that new interests, including part of the minority stockholders of the defunct Victoria club, will reorganize a new entry for the city of Victoria."

The bomb-shell announcement was tempered by statement from Kilburn, who said on behalf of the team directors:

"All is not lost by any means. We definitely plan to try to reorganize a new club in Victoria and plans to this effect are now being made. Everything in our power and in the power of the Western Hockey League will be done to keep professional hockey in Victoria.

"Victoria is too good a hockey city to lose the sport at this time. We have a fine core of loyal fans and it is for them that we are trying to keep the sport. We have an excellent rink and Victoria has been too bright a light in the WHL in recent years to give up now."

"It is our firm conviction that Victoria should not be without professional hockey and we will spare no effort to prevent this."

Need $30,000 to Start New Season

No official statement was made, but it is believed that the club will seek a new source of financial backing, either from one individual or from city business men.

While rumors flew thick and fast throughout the last part of the recently-concluded season that the Cougars would not re-enter the league next year, it had been thought that the franchise would be retained by the local directors if they could anticipate greater support next year.

The team suffered a serious loss in both fan support and finances this season.

It costs $148,000 to operate the team and the club took a damaging $28,000 loss. The previous year, it lost $10,000.

Every Team Hit by Prairie Trips

Kilburn drew up a streamlined budget, which he may present to the meeting in Vancouver, as a model for the Cougars and other WHL teams to follow in an effort to escape the financial avalanche that has threatened to engulf every team in the two-division league.

Among other things, the budget would call for only one prairie trip for each team. Last season, each team made three interdivisional trips at a total cost of close to $10,000. The three trips were believed to have hit every team heavily.

Until the franchise was turned over to the league today, city businessmen had owned approximately 25 per cent of the shares. Mrs. Hutchinson assumed 25 per cent ownership on the death of her husband.

Fred P. Hutchinson, former general manager of the club, Patrick had assumed ownership of quarter shares held by his two sons, Lynn and Murray, when they declined to continue their association with the team.

The Victoria club's withdrawal leaves three franchises operating in the coast division: New Westminster, Seattle and Vancouver Canucks.

Edmonton Flyers have been reported considering withdrawal from the prairie division, which also includes Brandon, Winnipeg and Calgary.

The Edmonton move was said to be under consideration as a means of publicizing the financial plight of minor league and forcing the National Hockey League to agree to mutually satisfactory player agreements.

Tournament softball starts tonight at Central Park with the opening of the Senior A Men's Softball League Annual Invitation Celebrations Tournament when Arrow Furniture meets Mary's Coffee Bar at 6:30.

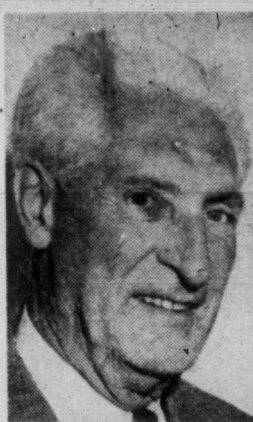

A slight switch will be noticed Sunday afternoon when the ladies invade what has previously been an all-male event. Victoria Polyettes Senior "A" Women will play Halfway House in place of Vancouver Pilseiners—who-Thursday night confirmed that they would be unable to make the trip.

The game will be in the nature of an exhibition with Polyettes picking up Halfway pitchers and catchers while Jocelyn Richmond, Ruth Oster and Lorna Pollock form Half to the Yankees' believe they

MISSES THIRD RECORD

Darrell Hops Away To Esquimalt Lead

Darrell McIntyre took another hop, step and jump in the direction of the junior boys' aggregate championship in the annual Esquimalt High School track and field meet Thursday as field events wound up in preparation for today's track competition.

McIntyre, who had set two records in junior competition in the broad jump and high jump earlier in the meet, missed his third mark by a scant two inches Thursday in the hop, step and jump event, open to both juniors and seniors.

However, his 39' 3" was not enough to win. He was forced to take second spot behind Sergi Gibson, who finally set a new record with a tremendous 39' 10" lunge.

However, the second-place finish gave McIntyre a commanding lead in his division, with a total of 13 points.

In the over-all house-totals, House I went into today's cinderwork with a comfortable 11-point bulge over House IV, last year's winners, who have 71 points. House II and House III are trailing with 48 points apiece.

In other events Thursday, John Hogg copped the junior shot put with a heave of 31' 4", while John McKinney took the senior high jump with a leap of 5' 3", defeating Malcolm Mitchell.

HANDY MAN IN THE RING

Heavyweight Willie Besmanoff's hands loom large in the camera's eye, but the 24-year-old German boxer has im-

Doug Peden OUTDOOR REPORT

Apparently destined to soon take a place beside such words as "litterbug" and "game hog" in the section of the outdoor vocabulary reserved for undesirables is a new title—"ramp rat."

Stand by the highway any sunny Sunday morning and watch the trailer-borne boats go by.

Victoria has become a city of boat-owners. And since this area has long been short of adequate all-year mooring facilities, many have had to settle for a craft that can be hauled out of the water and moored in the back yard. Others have trailer-sized boats by choice, preferring the freedom of movement permitted by the trailer arrangement.

Whatever the reasons, the land-based water buggies are around almost every corner and all owners must find a place to launch their boats. Beaches, sloping shores, rocky points and regular boat docks are all being used by the trailer addicts. However, the only lasting solution for boats of all sizes is an adequate system of launching ramps.

But even a series of launching sites won't work out until we can teach the ramp rats better manners.

Lost to boat owners because of the thoughtless actions of a minority is permission to use the ramp at the Patricia Bay seaplane base.

Ramp rats left cars, trailers and even trucks parked on the plane ramp at Patricia Bay while they went off on water cruises. They refused to use designated parking areas and, disregarding a prominent sign, left boats tied up at a seaplane float.

And making things even more exasperating for the seaplane people were the runabout jockeys who buzzed back and forth across the landing area while planes were coming in to land. Closing of this ramp was inevitable, but if the ramp rats have learned a lesson, the closure may have served a useful purpose.

Careless parking has created several problems at the Oak Bay ramp. Other thoughtless boatmen make a practice of parking on the ramp, fixing up motors or tackle, while others are lined up waiting to come in or go out.

Public ramps have been installed for your convenience. Use them but park your car and trailer in a proper place and consider the other fellow. Don't be a ramp rat.

Speaking of launching ramps, the private one at Van Isle Marina is ready for use. There is a 75 cents charge for launching small boats.

This should be a busy weekend for anglers with trout fishing in the larger Vancouver Island lakes and streams near its best and several hot spots beckoning those who want to tie into a salmon.

Although the best salmon fishing during the past week has been in waters from Nanaimo north, a good number of fish are still around at Saanich Inlet, Crofton and other lower-Island spots.

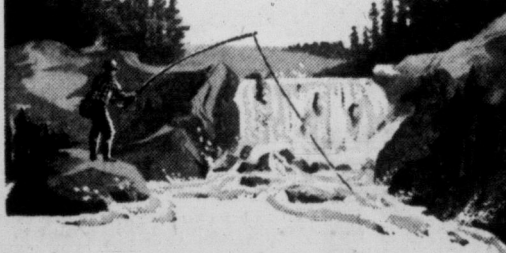

Bluebacks have been hitting in spurts at the Inlet but are still providing some lively action. One of the better areas has been off Ardmore, which probably means the blues will soon be heading into the open seas.

Some big salmon are also being taken in the Inlet and waters between Coal Island and Victoria are harboring some big springs and a few bluebacks.

The man doing the most hoping for good fishing at Saanich Inlet during the next 10 weeks is Vic Humphries, chairman of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby, which starts Sunday.

To enter, you need a VSIA membership and derby entry ticket. Both can be obtained at Inlet boathouses.

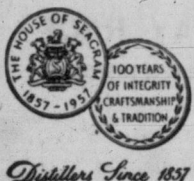

A few more salmon like the 22½-pounder Mrs. Win Rose caught off Brentwood Wednesday would ease Vic's worries.

LOOKING FOR FIGHT? NO, SEEKING RECIPE

MILWAUKEE (CP)—In the fifth inning of Tuesday's Milwaukee-Brooklyn game, the Braves' Henry Aaron belted a change-up pitch by loser Don Newcombe to the centrefield fence for a double. It was his second hit off Newk.

With time still "in" the hulking Newcombe ambled off the mound to within about 10 feet of the bag where Aaron was standing.

"Oh, oh," said the boys in the pressbox, "looks like the dusters will be flying now."

"Naw," said Aaron afterward.

"All he said to me was 'What's your wife feeding you?' I said 'steak' and he said 'How does she fix it?'"

"With onion, I said."

JAMES HITTING HERO

Goodyears Triumph In 22-7 Slugfest

In minor baseball action Thursday night another of those mammoth scores was posted when Goodyears of the Fairfield Little League walloped ANAF Vets, 22-7, behind the power-hitting of Billy James.

James rapped out three doubles and a pair of singles in five at-bats, while teammate Doug Bowie clouted a pair of doubles and a single in five appearances at the plate to account for eight of the team's 17 hits.

Bruce Samson, pitching the first four innings for the winners, threw one-hit ball and struck out nine before giving over to relievers Derrick Redmer and Bob Stubbins.

It was a hitters' game in the Pony League as Jaycees took an 11-1 decision over Rotary on 16 hits, while pitcher Jack Gaston was turning in a fine one-hit performance.

Gaston struck out nine and walked only five for his first win of the year.

Merchants trounced Lions, 21-9, in Esquimalt-Victoria West Little League, while Pollard Construction was taking a 17-10 win from Evans-Coleman-Johnson in the Oak Bay Little League.

New Westminster Salmonbellies, rebounding from their 18-7 defeat at the hands of Victoria Shamrocks Wednesday, rebounded on their home floor Thursday night to crack a four-game losing streak.

Victims of the Salmonbelly uprising were the Nanaimo Timbermen, who were nosed out 12-10, in an overtime battle to lose their chance to break a first-place tie with Shamrocks and Vancouver Pilseners.

Salmonbellies, tightening the league standings with their victory, moved within two points of the top spot.

WILKIE SETS PACE

Billy Jobb and Vern Wilkie were the big guns in the New Westminster attack. Wilkie forced the bitterly-fought game into overtime with a goal in the final 60 seconds of regulation time then scored his fourth goal in overtime.

Jobb, who made the play for Wilkie's tying tally, clinched the victory with his third marker. Also scoring three times for the Bellies was veteran Bob Raffle.

Backed by the sparking netminding of Stan Joseph, Salmonbellies moved into a 65 half-time lead but fell behind in the third period and just made it with their fourth-quarter rally.

Firefighters Trip Bakers

Firefighters are sitting on top of the Senior "B" Men's Softball League heap today.

Backing up the four-hit pitching of Barry Jackson, the Smokies handed Brodie's Bakery its first defeat of the season, 10-1, at Heywood Avenue Park Thursday night, to climb past the Bakers into the top spot.

Jack Rogers smashed a home run during the Firefighters' four-run fourth inning.

Padres Sack Bob Elliott 'For Morale'

Mounties Spoil Metkovitch Debut

By The Associated Press

Evidence of slipping morale troubled at least two Pacific Coast League baseball clubs—and their fans—Thursday.

The San Diego Padres yesterday fired field manager Bob Elliott and hired George Metkovitch "to help the morale of the club." Vancouver promptly spoiled Metkovitch's debut by battering the Padres 9-4 as Spider Jorgensen and Jim Marshall blasted home runs.

The Sacramento Solons drew fees from a crowd of 721 as Sac errors gave Portland five unearned runs for a 5-2 victory, sixth straight loss for the league's cellar dwellers.

R. C. Stevens, big Hollywood first baseman, didn't do Seattle morale any good as he homered and doubled for all the Stars' runs in their 3-1 victory over the Rainiers. The triumph put the league-leading Hollywood Stars a game and a half ahead of the runner-up Los Angeles Angels, who were shut out 6-0 by the six-hit pitching of San Francisco's Harry Dorish.

THIRD SHUTOUT

Dorish, chased by the Angels in two innings Tuesday, collected his third shutout in eight games—five wins, three losses—and preserved his league earned-run crown.

Bill Renna smashed a 400-foot two-run Seal triple and later singled home Harry Malmberg, who had doubled.

Sacramento's Joe Stanka retired 15 men in a row and had a shutout going with two out in the eighth when three Solon infield errors opened the gates for four unearned runs by the Portland Beavers. Another Solon boot in the ninth gave the Beavers their fifth unearned run.

The Solons had scored a run in the first inning and added another in the fifth. Stanka was going with a four-hitter before his infield collapsed.

Vancouver's Jorgensen blasted a pair of two-run homers and singled in a fifth run against San Diego. Mountie Jim Marshall opened a four-run rally in the eighth with a homer. Charlie Beamon went the distance for the victory.

Padre general manager Ralph Kiner said the field manager change was made "to help the morale of the club," now in sixth place with a 17-19 record and six games behind front-running Hollywood.

Elliott, who took the job in 1955, rejected an offer to become assistant general manager with the question, "How could I work with Kiner when he never consulted me on player deals when I was field managing the club?"

It's the first managerial job for Metkovitch, 36, up from the Padre outfield.

HAPPINESS PILLS HELP BERTOIA'S PLATE CLIMB

NEW YORK (AP)—Reno Bertoia says "happiness pills" may have lifted him atop the major league batting standings. But the new Detroit Tiger team physician says he'll have to stay there on his own.

"I don't know whether it's the pills or what it is," said the 22-year-old Detroit third baseman who rose from a .182 hitter last year to a current .398. "I feel more relaxed and I'm confident. Maybe it's a diet of steady work."

Dr. Luther R. Leader recommended Thursday that the tranquilizing drugs have served their purpose and should be stopped.

The Italian-born Bertoia, who was signed off the sandlots of Windsor, Ont., as a bonus player in 1953, has hit safely in all but two of the games he has appeared in this year. In addition, manager Jack Tighe says Bertoia's improvement as a fielder has been phenomenal. He hasn't made an error since he was moved in as a regular.

Double-Century Partnership Puts West Indies in Command

LONDON (AP)—Bruce Pairaud and Clive Walcott romped to a double-century partnership against Cambridge University Thursday, putting the West Indian cricket tourists into a strong position at the end of the second day's play.

The West Indies finished with 366 for 6 in reply to the university's first innings score of 225. Pairaud, a 26-year-old stylish right-hand bat from British Guiana, was at the wicket for three hours 42 minutes in scoring 127. He scored 14 boundaries and staked a strong place as opener for the West Indies in the first test against England opening in Birmingham May 30.

Walcott opened with some bright hitting. Then he went into his shell and took 75 minutes to score 26 runs. He totalled 86 and the second wicket partnership was worth 205 runs in 190 minutes.

Collye Smith, 55, not out and Frank Worrell, 49, scored 89 in an hour.

Doug Insole and Trevor Bailey made strong bids for a place on England's team with hard-hitting innings against Glamorgan. Insole scored 106 and Bailey knocked 102 not out. Essex finally declared at 396 for 7 in reply to Glamorgan's first innings score of 146. Glamorgan scored 15 for 0 wicket in the second innings.

Yorkshire raced to an innings and 41 runs victory over Oxford University. Fast bowler Michael Cowan paved the way with 5 for 33 in Oxford's first innings and spinner Johnny Wardle followed up with 65 in the university's second innings.

John Henry Traded

SAN FRANCISCO (BUP)—The San Francisco Forty Niners yesterday traded their star all-around back, John Henry Johnson, former star with the Calgary Stampede, to the Detroit Lions.

The Lions gave up backs Bill Stits and Bill Bowman plus an undisclosed draft choice for the rugged Johnson.

IRISH SOCCER

LONDON (Reuters)—Distillery defeated Linfield 1-0 in an Irish League city cup soccer game Thursday night.

TCP* and YOU

The motorist today is confused by conflicting claims of competitive gasolines. Not every motorist feels that these gasolines live up to the claims made for them. As a result, he is becoming sceptical.

Tri-Cresyl-Phosphate

TCP is not a combination of letters invented merely to impress the motorist. TCP describes the chemical Tri-Cresyl-Phosphate. Its use was developed by Shell Oil over a period of years, as part of Shell's programme of research to bring you better motoring. TCP was designed to eliminate the effect of deposits that form in your car engine. These deposits cause engine misfiring and pre-ignition—stop you from getting top efficiency from your engine. This is what TCP was designed to stop. And it does it.

Only Shell Gasolines

have patented TCP additive

The Canadian Government granted Shell a patent on the use of TCP in 1955. This was official recognition of the advantages offered to Canadian motorists by this proven product of Shell Research. No other gasoline has patented TCP.

Again, on February 14th, 1957, Judge Holtzoff of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia ruled that Shell was entitled to a patent for Shell gasolines with TCP.

In his ruling Judge Holtzoff said:

"There would seem to be no doubt that the inventors in this case made an important discovery: namely, the ability to eliminate or at least substantially to reduce the fouling of spark plugs..."

The U.S. Government has not granted a patent on any other gasoline additive that corrects this costly engine fault.

This is the story of TCP—the patented gasoline additive designed to restore peak efficiency to your car engine.

Shell Premium—and Shell Gasoline, too—contain TCP, to give you better motoring and longer engine life. This is what TCP means to you.

U.K.—'Catty, Cruel' U.S.—Big 'Ant-Heap'

CHICAGO (AP)—The London correspondent of the Chicago Tribune says Britons try to be polite to Americans to their faces but, among themselves, are "catty," "bitter," "sour" and "cruel."

Arthur Veysey, in a dispatch to The Tribune, in effect replied to a story published in London by The Daily Express.

In The Express article, Rene MacColl, veteran Washington correspondent recalled home after a tour of duty in the United States, said he was leaving the U.S. with heartfelt "good riddance."

He described the U.S. as a "great, swarming ant-heap of a country."

"A jumbo swirl of riches and plenty," of "careless gunplay of trigger-happy cops, millions of tranquilizer pills, psychiatry run riot."

NOW TO BRITAIN

Veysey said: "There are a couple of million Englishmen it would be a pleasure never to see again. Most of these belong to or cater to the so-called upper classes. As a group they are becoming a psychological case."

"They or their forebears once ran Britain and strode the world like lords. Today their rule in England is challenged and abroad they tend to be either fiddlers or beggars. America is top dog now and they can't accept the challenge."

"Yet they realize Britain seems doomed to live as a satellite of the United States. So, face to face with Americans, they try to be polite. But when they think they are alone or when their self-control is gone they are as catty, as bitter, as unfair, as sour, as cruel as a proverbial movie star whose day is done."

"I am glad to leave behind a nation where one girl in a hundred and two boys in a hundred go to a university. It will be fun to ride trains not designed in the last century. It will be nice to buy for $3,000 a car that is a car, instead of a bouncing puppy along with the rich English equip themselves. It will be an experience to drive on a road with more than two lanes."

"... It will be a shock to pick up a telephone and discover it works. ... I'll be glad to be in a country where hot water is common in homes. ..."

LONG HISTORY

The island in the Seine, now the heart of Paris, was occupied by the Gauls long before the Romans.

Scientists Explore High Seas Fishing

Two Vessels From Departure Bay Equipped With Special Gear for Pacific Research

NANAIMO—High seas exploratory fishing started this month by two vessels from Departure Bay, chartered by the Fisheries Research Board.

Key West II and Fort Ross are operating under the ocean survey program of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission.

Each vessel is equipped with special fishing gear and other aids for scientific tests.

Fishing will be carried out at seven selected stations. United States and Japanese research ships will be on similar assignments elsewhere in the Pacific from now until September.

A free exchange of information and specimens between all three participating countries is planned.

Most fishing will be done with gill nets in two-mile sets, twice the length used in last year's fishing.

Each set will have nets of varying mesh sizes. This year, trial sets will also be made with a gill net which can be lowered to 16 fathoms.

Fish specimens will be landed at Departure Bay.

CHEMAINUS FUN SPOT

'Project Paradise' Enters Final Stage

CHEMAINUS — A project started by the Rod and Gun Club three years ago is beginning to take shape at Whedde's Lake on River Road, just five minutes' drive from downtown Chemainus.

It was in the spring of 1954 the club applied to MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., Chemainus Division, for a lease on several acres of property around Whedde's or Chemainus Lake.

The company gave the club a five-year lease and full approval of plans to transform the area into a fishing, boating and picnicking paradise for Chemainus and district families.

The project was a big one for the small club to undertake, and it has had to be satisfied

CLEANED UP

First stage of the project saw an old shack on the property, long a community eyesore, torn down. Approach to the lake was cleared and cleaned up.

For the past month members have been busy building catwalks, floats and rafts.

With logs, timber and plank donated by the company, they have made a large float, 20 by seven feet and anchored it across the mouth of the lake. A catwalk extends to it from shore, so youngsters reach the float safely to fish.

The club will construct two or three sturdy rafts for the use of youngsters who prefer to paddle around in search of their fish.

Final phases of the Whedde's Lake project will be clearing a picnic site at the approach to the lake and development of a launching site for small boats.

BIGGER TROUT

With the co-operation of the fishing public and the youngsters, the club hopes to have the lake producing good-sized trout in the next year or two. While most lakes on the island are noted for their lack of fish, biologists claim there are too many fish in Whedde's Lake and not enough food, consequently the trout are small, ranging from six up to 14 inches.

With this in mind, the club plans to sponsor a fishing derby later on this year with prizes for the youngster catching the most fish, and a special prize for the entrant catching the most lizards, which also abound in the lake.

The heavier the lake is fished, club president Cliff Shillito said, "the sooner the balance between the fish and the amount of feed available will be righted and kids will catch big trout."

Diving Float In Place At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — The Rotary Club's repaired and repainted diving float was towed into position at the local beach this week.

President Harry Ewart said a work party would be held shortly to lay matting around the outside edge of the float.

The club's annual installation night will be held Saturday, June 15. Harry Nicholls was named installation night chairman. He will be assisted by Bob Bennie, Bob Hossack, Jack Jameson and George Bryant.

The date will be in August, but their itinerary is not complete.

There will be fun and entertainment for all, from "gold" rush to sordid games.

132 Entries For Parade At Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A record 132 entries for the Empire Day parade will highlight celebrations here which start today.

Thousands of persons are already flocking to this hub city for three days of fun and frolic. Tonight, May Queen Carol Ann Armishaw will be crowned before a crowd of about 2,500 in the civic arena.

Events include a fishing derby, a giant Lions Club picnic on Newcastle Island, a swim marathon, sports, and a soap box derby which has attracted 40 competitors from Island points.

Sloan to Attend Canadian Scottish Nanaimo Service

NANAIMO — Chief Justice Gordon Sloan, the province's administrator in the absence of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, will attend a service May 26 here in St. Paul's Church, where the colors of the 2nd Battalion, Canadian Scottish, will be marched off for the last time.

A large number of civic and military personnel will attend. A public address system will be installed to relay the service, to be conducted by Capt. A. E. Hendy, to the public.

The service ends a two-day field day for the regiment and inspection by Maj-Gen. Chris Vokes, CB, CBE, DSO, general officer commanding Western Command.

Trawler Found But No Sign Of Skipper

VANCOUVER — A 34-foot trawler, missing with one man aboard since noon Wednesday, was found Thursday night overturned on a reef near Kyuquot on Vancouver Island.

The RCAF said the "M.J." registered at Prince Rupert, was spotted from the air by a Canoe seaplane. There was no sign of the unidentified man.

A department of fisheries vessel was investigating the wreck. The search began earlier Thursday when the M.J. was reported overdue.

ARMY BAND TO ESCORT QUEEN FROM DOCKSIDE

Victoria May Queen Sue Pearson will alight from the yacht "Iorana" in the Inner Harbor tonight at 7.15 to open a long weekend of festivities for her "subjects."

With her princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence, she will be greeted at the dockside by Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee, and George Geddie, Junior Chamber of Commerce queen-crowning chairman.

The queen's parade will be escorted by the 5th Medium Battery Band to the steps of the Legislative Buildings at 7.30 p.m. for the 20-minute crowning ceremony.

Honor guard at the steps will be Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, flanked by trumpeters from the Queen's Own Rifles, and step guards from the RCMP.

Queen Sue will be crowned by Mayor Percy Scurrell. Victor Fuggle, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will present a trophy to the Queen and a replica of the trophy to Marilynne Dawson, 1956 Queen.

Parade will move off at 8.05, proceeding north on Government to Yates, down Douglas to the Crystal Garden.

MONTE ROBERTS

There is one sure way to gain popularity in the city of Victoria these days.

Join the Kinsmen and get yourself appointed to the committee responsible for deciding how to get rid of the Bingo profits.

The way things are going, the Kinsmen are having more attendance danced on them than a rich uncle who hasn't made his will yet.

The only trouble the Kinsmen are having, they aren't certain whether they are being loved for themselves alone, or whether their popularity results from money in the bank.

And there are certainly some weird efforts to woo them. The latest suggestion, that the Kinsmen loan $20,000 to the city so the city can put a new floor in the arena, is a real lulu.

The Kinsmen may as well finance a new floor for the arena.

They have already financed it to the extent of several thousand bucks, via rentals and concessions.

But my advice to the Kinsmen is, take advantage of your popularity while it lasts.

Because, as soon as you announce which project you're going to support, 999 people will howl in protest.

And while we're in a somewhat jaundiced mood, let us have a look at B.C. centennial preparations.

As far as these tired old eyes can see, something is missing.

And that something is a sense of excitement, of light-hearted amusement.

There are plenty of ponderous preparations for truly worthwhile projects, and I venture to say we will be up to our shoulders in Culture before the year 1958 has passed away.

But where are the fun and games? The whoop-de-do, the spirit of Mardi Gras, or even of the good old days?

The only bright spots to relieve the overall grayness, of the centennial picture to date have been the Sasquatch (a bit overdone) and Century Sam (very much underdone).

If the centennial celebrations are to attract tourists, let's put a little life, a little pep, and a lot of laughs into our effort.

The way things are going, I am afraid the celebrations will go down in history as the 100 years' bore.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Deputy minister of the department of veterans' affairs, G. Lucien Lalonde, will arrive in Victoria Tuesday, May 21, on a departmental inspection tour. No public appearances are slated.

Before coming to Victoria the deputy minister will attend the opening of the B.C. provincial command Canadian Legion convention at Cranbrook, May 19 to 20.

Program of music by the RCA's Tactical Air Command band announced for Monday night will be held Sunday at 9 p.m. in the Royal Theatre.

Free concert is sponsored by Greater Victoria Celebrations' Association.

The Vancouver Rescue Centre today issued a notice to mariners warning that test firing of two-inch rocket flares will be carried out from Christopher Point, near Esquimalt, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, May 21-24.

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday voted to support provincial civil servants in their wage demands, and urged V.L.C. affiliates to provide financial help if the civil servants go on strike.

Chiefs and Petty Officers' Association (RCN) plan a dance at the Golden Slipper, starting at 8 p.m. Saturday.

M. R. M. Dale, Canadian commercial secretary newly appointed to Cape Town, South Africa, will be available to discuss trade with that area with local businessmen Tuesday next in the office of Deputy Trade Minister T. L. Sturgess.

Mr. Dale, previously at Cairo, Egypt, is on a Canada-wide tour to spark trade interest.

Esquimalt Golden Age Club meets in the Fraser Street Athletic hall Wednesday next at 2 p.m.

Smouldering bedclothes overcame Esquimalt soldier Roy Donnelly, 976 Esquimalt Road, when he dropped a lighted cigarette in bed shortly before midnight Thursday.

Esquimalt and HMC Dockyard firemen answered the call turned in by Mrs. Donnelly. Her husband was revived and taken for examination to HMCS Naden Hospital.

The bed was damaged by fire and water and the rest of the house sustained minor damage.

TRIBUTE TO QUEEN VICTORIA

TEENAGER'S ANSWER:

'Rowdy Youths Need an Outlet'

The last in a series of articles on the hoodlum problem in Victoria.

By DINAH KERR

What's to be done about rowdiness?

Sure, you can mutter, as one person did, that the teenagers need "a good belt on the bugle."

But is that the solution? Or would it solve rowdiness to put extra policemen on the Yates Street patrol Friday and Saturday nights?

One city constable has estimated that the police could round up as many as 20 teenagers every night by enforcing traffic laws against driving without a muffler, parking more than 12 inches from the curb or taking corners against a red light without first coming to a full stop.

But then what?

City police department has only two juvenile officers (last year there was one). Juvenile court meets once a week.

Social workers and juvenile officers have their hands full now preparing cases on the real "toughs" in the city—the girls who stay out all night with boys or do a heavy traffic in shop-lifting, the boys who break into small stores or steal cars.

If the police department put the heat on every young lawbreaker in the downtown area, teenagers who really need help would be lost in a crowd of juvenile "cut-ups."

Besides, says Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer, "these kids love publicity."

They might decide to do something about it.

The kids themselves, in letters to this reporter and through interviews, claim that the Yates Street crowds will never disperse until there's something better to do.

They want more dances, a drag-strip and a sports centre, "not a youth centre where you crochet doilies—a place where you can fix up your car" with facilities for boxing lessons and basketball, among other things.

"All this town can think of is tourist attractions . . . or a useless totem pole," one said.

Another, who signed off "yours disgustedly," says that teenagers "get sad" when told to move on by a policeman "because there is no place to go except to the next corner."

Dr. Carl, who returned today from a three-week lecture tour in Ohio and Kentucky, said he did not see one "clear" and unpoluted stream during his trip to eastern United States.

Dr. Carl was engaged by the Audubon Society of Canada, the largest national conservation organization, to show one of his nature movies to people in the two American states.

He lectured in 16 cities and appeared once on TV.

He said people in eastern United States found it hard to believe that Victoria did not suffer from severe winters.

"They look upon British Columbia as the last unspoiled part of North America," he said.

Victoria restaurant operator for the past half-century, "Charlie" to his friends and acquaintances, has died.

Dun Chan, 80, born in Canton, China, died Thursday in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He had been a resident here for 57 years and entered the restaurant business in 1901.

At one time he operated the

Montreal Cafe, the White Cafe, the Tourist Cafe, and in 1930 took over the Panama Cafe where the present Drake Hotel is located. The cafe has since moved to Government Street, but the name remains the same.

Mr. Chan, who retired in 1950, saw meals increase from 15 cents "from soup to dessert" to present-day prices.

His business is being carried on by his sons.

Funeral service will be held Saturday from Sands Mortuary at 3 p.m. with interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Surviving are the widow at the residence, 1409 Government; eight sons, Steven, Philip, Ira, Allan, Roy and Paul of Victoria; Kan of Vancouver, and Herbert of Winnipeg; four daughters, and 30 grandchildren.

Colorful IODE Ceremony Launches Holiday Weekend

Over 1,000 Attend Empire Day Service

More than 1,000 elementary school students and parents stood in the drizzling rain today to mark the annual IODE Empire Day service on the Legislative grounds.

Some 750 students lined the legislative steps, as flower-girls, their light frocks spotted with raindrops, placed bouquets at the base of Queen Victoria's statue.

The service was the first function planned for the long holiday weekend.

"We are apt to be confused in understanding our history because we live beside the large and powerful nation of the United States," guest-speaker Attorney-General Robert Bonner, told the students.

"We, as Canadians, have a history that is just as significant."

SENIOR DOMINION

"Canada is the senior dominion in the British Commonwealth of Nations," he said.

"We can be secure in knowing that in the history of our country and the commonwealth we have contributed much to the welfare of mankind."

Released from school to attend the ceremony, students travelled to the legislative buildings in chartered buses. Many participated as sea, air and army cadets, guides, scouts, sea rangers, brownies and cubs.

They led the singing of "Land of Hope and Glory," "O Canada" and "Land of Our Birth," with high piping voices.

Among them was a new Canadian from Estonia, Marje Molder, 12, who represented Margaret Jenkins School and the IODE junior chapter, Oak Leaf, as she laid her wreath of flowers at the statue's base.

IODE standard-bearers escorted a group, including Mayor Percy Scurrell, reeves of the municipalities, Dr. J. E. K. English and other officials of the department of education, to the front lines of the ceremony.

Prayer was led by Rev. Douglas B. Carr of Centennial United Church. The gathering also was addressed by Mrs. A. W. Smith, regent of Victoria municipal chapter, IODE.

Music was provided by the Central Junior Pipe Band, Sea Cadets Band, and Victoria Schools Pipe Band.

British Columbians are fortunate to have streams and rivers which have not yet been polluted, according to Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum.

Dr. Carl, who returned today from a three-week lecture tour in Ohio and Kentucky, said he did not see one "clear" and unpoluted stream during his trip to eastern United States.

500 Camera Artists Arriving for Parley

Some 500 photographers, both amateur and professional, are registering at the Empress Hotel today for the third annual convention of the Photographic Society of America, northwest region.

Opening with sightseeing tours this afternoon, the convention will be a three-day photographers' workshop, with lectures by top North American photographers in the fields of movies, nature study, color and creative work.

Attending two conventions simultaneously is dapper, white-haired Dr. J. S. Bricker of Vancouver.

Dr. Bricker has been a dentist since 1919 and an amateur photographer since 1938—when a leg ailment forced him to give up golf.

He is combining these enthusiasms by attending both the 41st annual convention of the B.C. Dental Association and the photographers' convention.

FLITTING ABOUT

This afternoon, for instance, Dr. Bricker will be flitting between the photographers and a lecture on "Dental Medicine in Everyday Practice," given by Dr. Sol Silverman Jr., of the University of California.

If there is time, he will also attend annual meetings of the College of Dental Surgeons of British Columbia and the Dentists' Legal Protective Association of B.C.

"Photograph is an ideal recreation from dentistry," Dr. Bricker said. "I specialize in seascapes and character studies—and X-ray studies of patients' mouths, but that is routine work and not so exciting."

STARTED IN 1902

James A. McVie, APSA of Victoria started planning the photographers' convention five years ago.

"It was originally designed as a session for PSA members of B.C., Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. But we have received registrations from Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New York, Michigan, California and Pennsylvania," he said.

Photographs depicting "Color in the Canadian Rockies" will be shown at 8 tonight.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. About a generation ago, HMS New Zealand, a battle cruiser of the British navy, visited Victoria. Will you please tell me what date that was? F.L.T.

A. The New Zealand, one of the largest warships ever to visit this port, arrived here July 25, 1913. Capt. Halsey (later Admiral Halsey) was in command. He and the officers of the ship were entertained at a round of functions befitting the traditions of Esquimalt as the naval base of Canada's Pacific coast.

Q. It is known how the town of Pincher Creek, Alta., came to have that name? N.R.E.

A. The town is in the Macleod district, on Pincher Creek, a tributary of the Oldman River, and is on the Crownst branch of the C.P.R. The name appears in surveyors' reports as early as 1880 and is said to have originated in the fact that a pair of horseshoe pinchers or pinchers found in a camp near the creek was identified as having belonged to a party of prospectors from Montana killed by Indians in 1864.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Vegetable Shopping Time To Stock Up for Weekend

By PENNY SAVER

Some of the prices have gone up, while others have gone down and still more have stayed the same. That's the situation on the vegetable counters this week.

Local stores are still importing much of the produce sold, but locally-grown goods are coming to the fore. Green peas have gone up a bit and are now two pounds for 35 cents. Local spinach has gone up a bit, too, to two pounds for 35 cents. Egg plant is 43 cents a pound, and asparagus is the same price as last week, 29 cents a pound bundle.

Local hothouse dessert tomatoes are the same price as last week, 39 cents a pound, and other desserts are 50 cents a pound. Celery is lower in price at 29 cents each. Broccoli, at two pounds for 43 cents, and green onions, at two bunches for 19 cents, are priced the same as last week.

Radishes are two bunches for 15 cents, and beets, two bunches for 39 cents. White turnips are 29 cents for two bunches. Gradually, the price of strawberries is dropping. Now the price is 28 cents a box or two for 55 cents.

After checking the vegetable counters this morning, I roamed into a hardware section and found myself surrounded by utensils for camping. The coffee caddy I noticed will be just the thing for those of you planning to "take to the woods" over the long weekend and to enjoy a stint of camping. This huge metal coffee pot is a honey-brown color with white tracery pattern all over it. As well as the regular handle, it has an over-the-top metal handle so that you can hang it over the fire. The pot is $4.95. Matching metal cups, of the same brown enamel with white design, are real man-sized ones. The mugs are 35 cents each.

For camping or for that awaited beach party, there are light-weight extension forks that make roasting wieners a cinch. The wooden handled forks extend to twice their original length, and you don't singe fingers trying to get your wiener or marshmallow browned. These are 39 cents each.

On Etiquette

Gastronomical Temptations for Teen-agers:

Will you please suggest a menu for a group of my son's high school friends who are coming to dinner I want to serve something nice, but not so fancy that it will embarrass them. Should it be buffet style, or would they be more at ease seated at one big table?

Louise Davis Answers:

How about baked ham, turkey or roast beef? With any of them you can serve creamed, au gratin or scalloped potatoes and another vegetable, such as green beans or peas. Boys and girls of that age are inclined to pass up a salad as long as there is plenty of the "stick-to-your-ribs" dishes available. But I suggest it anyway for a balance. At that age, they aren't long on soups or appetizers, so I suggest that you eliminate them. I think that the young people might prefer being seated at one table, for regimentation is the easy way for teen-agers at dinner parties. Much depends on the general party habits of the crowd. A buffet dinner would be good experience for them, for each boy and girl would use initiative. They develop more assurance if they fend for themselves in serving their own food from a buffet table. I don't think that buffet style is so much to the other extreme that they would be unhappy if that's what you decide. Both have their advantages, so I think the answer would be whichever is the simplest way for you. For dessert—ice cream and cake is always a favorite with young people. It's not very original, but it is always safe.

Directs Pilot Project in Nursing School Evaluation

The Canadian Nurses' Association has announced the appointment of Miss Helen K. Mussallem to the staff of national office as director of the pilot project for evaluation of schools of nursing in Canada. Miss Mussallem is a graduate of the Vancouver General Hospital School of Nursing, with a diploma in administration, teaching and supervision from the University of Washington, a BN degree from McGill University and an MA degree from Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Miss Mussallem's experience has included positions as staff, operating room, head nurse and supervisor at Vancouver General Hospital. Following three years service with Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, she returned to the School of Nursing, Vancouver General Hospital, as senior instructor and assistant director of nursing education. Miss Mussallem's most recent position is associate director of nursing education, School of Nursing, Vancouver General Hospital.

Her appointment to the Canadian Nurses' Association staff becomes effective Sept. 1. The evaluation projects the first step toward a full-fledged program of accreditation of Canadian schools of nursing, to be undertaken by the nursing profession in Canada.

Under authority of provincial acts, all schools of nursing in Canada are approved. The approving agency may be the provincial nurses' association, as in British Columbia; the provincial university, as in Alberta; or the provincial department of health as in Ontario. Approval is compulsory and is based upon standards which are designated in the nursing act or in regulations authorized by the act. Accreditation is voluntary. It is recognition of excellent evidence that the accredited school is maintaining high standards of education.

The primary aim of an accreditation program in nursing is to improve nursing service by improving the preparation of nurses for service. This is accomplished by the assistance given to schools through the accrediting process in evaluating their own programs and effecting improvements where weaknesses are found.

As an outcome of the evaluation project which Miss Mussallem will direct, 20 schools will be visited, procedures and criteria established and personnel trained.

New facade of the YWCA is the pride of members of the board of directors who have worked hard during the past months to effect the now-evident improvements. Mrs. H. C. Small, president, at left, is pictured with Mrs. Fred Bliss, first vice-president, and Mrs. D. A. O'Keely, building and equipment chairman.

Budget and Bequest Effect Improvements

By TERRY FRENCH

The YWCA has a new spring out-fit, inside and out.

During the past few months, the building has been the centre of a redecorating and refurbishing campaign carried out through the efforts of the board of directors of the "Y."

The outside of the building, formerly a dull grey with an overlay of ivy, is now a bright and cheery blossom beige which makes the building appear even larger than it is. Doors are gay terra cotta shade. The outside improvement was made possible by a bequest from the late Carl Pendray, well-known city benefactor.

Inside, the front office, resident room and dining room would hardly be recognized by anyone who had seen them a few months ago.

Much thought and planning went into the redecoration of the rooms and the budget was stretched most effectively. All beds have been remodelled to Hollywood style, thus making the room arrangements more flexible and giving more space. All-one-color themes in the rooms have also given the illusion of more room. Blue, rose, light turquoise, chartreuse and sunny yellow walls and furniture have taken the place of the dark wood and varied furniture shades. Innovations in the rooms include glass-topped tables and dressers, new indirect lighting, bamboo sink screens and matching drapes and bedspreads. Maple furniture has been added to many rooms, giving an attractive accent, while in other rooms furniture has been remodelled and refinished and given coats of paint to match walls.

As one of the resident girls remarked when her new room was being admired, "It's a wonderful spot to be in."

The dining room is now much brighter, with new pink walls and pink woodwork, eliminating former brown wooden doorways and trim. The warm pink, chosen to complement the striking pink and green floral plates on the walls, is accented with green furniture.

The front office, too, has been extended and is now twice its original size. Fluorescent lighting is an added improvement.

There is still more to be done in the building, but all rooms are expected to be finished by the end of 1957.

Convention Luncheon

A banana boat, complete with cargo, centred the head table in the Duke of Kent Room at the Empress Hotel, where members of the British Columbia Dental Assistants Association gathered for luncheon on Thursday. Paper hibiscus flowers and gay colored posters of life in the Caribbean, added to the decorative motif.

Presiding was Miss Elsie May McDonald, Victoria, provincial president, and seated with her were Miss Beverley Barewell, Victoria, treasurer; Miss Lorna Graham, Vancouver, first vice-president, Canadian association; Miss Marilyn Mark, New Westminster, president-elect; Mrs. Joan Lennox, Vancouver, past provincial president; Miss June Bulych, New Westminster, vice-president; Miss Donna Butcher, Victoria, secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Forbes, guest speaker.

Association members, in Victoria for the annual convention, represented groups from Vancouver, Victoria, the interior of B.C., and New Westminster.

Decorations were arranged by the Vancouver group, and convened by Mrs. Elizabeth Steele.

Today another luncheon was held in the Duke of Kent Room when Mrs. Nova Graham, BCER home economist, was guest speaker.

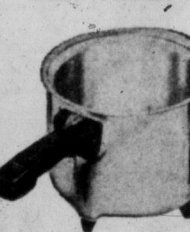

Tonight the dental assistants will gather for cocktails in the Duke of Kent Room and for an entertainment provided by the Vancouver groups. Later they will join the dentists and their wives in the Crystal Ballroom for dinner and a cabaret.

Saturday, the final luncheon of the convention will be held in the Duke of Kent Room, when Dr. Harry Johns, Victoria, will install the new officers.

IN HONOR OF THE BRIDE

The bride who protects her husband from the clutter created in a bathroom by drying lingerie is getting off to a good start. This bride, left, does her personal laundry in the morning and hangs it on a lazy Susan dryer and fits neatly into the bathtub. The shower curtain can be drawn to keep the bathroom looking neat. Centre, the bride hides her pin curls under a pretty shower cap and looks attractive. She looks fresh, right, and neat in the morning. Here she takes a minute to arrange a bouquet of flowers for the breakfast table. She dressed quickly: a shower, dash of lipstick, a fresh brunch coat.

Be Sure to Keep Good Looks After Marriage

The new bride knows that her life is going to be a bit more complicated than it was before her marriage. But she'll probably find that her husband expects her to be pretty much unchanged, except for the delight of having his dreamgirl share his home. And it's a wise bride who continues to be a dream girl.

Feeding a brand new husband and making a comfortable home for him are big projects for a girl who has never tackled a homemaking job. But don't get so involved with homemade apple pies and tastefully arranged furniture that you neglect a vital factor in keeping that man happy.

If the man who has wooed and won you has only seen you on date nights looking your best, it's not smart to startle him right after the honeymoon by revealing just how you achieve your glamour.

Things are a lot simpler for the young housewife than they are for the girl who keeps her office job after marriage. For if pin curls are the basis of that hairdo her man so admires, she, at least, can set her hair in the afternoon while her husband is away at work.

But even the working wife, who must do her pin-up job at night, doesn't have to spend the evening looking as though she'd been scalped. There are colorful scarves and little ruffled caps made just to disguise those unattractive pin curls.

A soft permanent should give her hair enough body so that the curl will last from one shampoo to the next, and eliminate the necessity for nightly pin-ups. Naturally, her hair should be washed at least once a week, for unless it is clean at all times, no hairdo will be soft and lovely.

The most difficult time of the day for the new bride to keep up that dream girl illusion is at breakfast. Since time is important in the mornings, she can't allot too much of it to looking pretty.

Every young wife will find it helpful to own a variety of fresh, crisp-looking brunch coats for early morning use. They can be simple to care for since many come in drip-dry fabrics that can be swished through detergent suds, dried and worn again without touching the ironing board.

Getting up a few minutes ahead of your husband will give you enough time for a fast shower, neatly combed hair and a dash of lipstick. Then, while he is dressing, breakfast can be prepared, the table attractively set and you can join him at his morning meal, looking as fresh and pretty as you did when you both were out on a date.

Incidentally, your bridegroom will come to the table in a much happier frame of mind if he doesn't have to do battle with your laundry before he can get into the shower.

Filmy stockings will bring a smile to a man's face when they encase pretty legs. But the smile is apt to become a scowl if they're dripping wet and hit him in the face when he steps into the bathroom.

It's a clever wife who realizes that it never occurred to the man she married that she had to work particularly hard to be a glamor girl. And, believe it or not, her loveliness will be more appreciated if he never finds out.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'I Am a Mess; I Want to Get Rid of Hips, Increase Bust'

Q. "This is the first time I ever have written to a paper for help, and I hope you can and will help me. I am a mess. I have been told that I am cute, no worse and no more. I am five feet four inches tall, my bust measures 34, waist 22 and hips 37 inches.

"I want to get rid of my hips and increase my bust. I am 15 years old. I weigh 117 pounds."

A. Your weight is just about right and your bust and waist measurements are all right, too. Your hips are out of line. If you will do the hip slimming exercises faithfully you can lose inches in that spot. Here is one: Lie on your left side and put your right hand on the floor to brace yourself. Lift your right leg up toward the ceiling. Lower leg. Do this 10 times. Then do the same with left leg.

Q. "I have pimples and blackheads on my back which are most embarrassing when I wear a formal or a swim suit. I am 15. What causes these?"

A. At your age the little oil glands are overactive. You probably wash your face carefully several times a day but when taking your baths miss this are on your back. Therefore, the pores become clogged and blackheads form. Later these become infected and form pimples. Use a drying lotion or alcohol on the pimples and ask your mother to scrub your back for you each day.

Q. "I am 15 years old and am very flat chested. My mother says not to worry because I have plenty of time yet to develop but I don't think so. My mother told me to write to you about it."

A. Girls vary as to the time of developing the bust. You do have time yet to do so. Many develop later on. Good nutrition and exercise aid in the growth and development of our body.

Q. "Will you give me your opinion on this matter? Some people say that it is all right to take showers during the menstrual period. What do you think?"

A. A warm shower is all right, but avoid chilling such as a cold shower would give you.

Curtail Culture, Help Pensioners, Demands Socred

The federal government's "frivolous" $50,000,000 cultural fund and high subsidies for the CBC were criticized Thursday night by Noel Bell, Social Credit candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich.

"These expenditures should be curtailed and funds directed to old-age assistance first," Mr. Bell said.

"Then, if we can afford these luxuries, vote the funds for them. Our consciences cannot be clear when we do not fulfill our responsibilities first to our senior citizens."

Speaking at a public meeting at Metchosis Hall, Mr. Bell said over-taxation by the Liberal government is depreciating the wage-earner's purchasing power.

This was causing demands for higher wages and increased living costs, he said.

The Social Credit "pay-as-you-go" policy would change this by eliminating treasury surpluses.

Social Credit also favors transferrable superannuation schemes, so that a worker can take his accumulated benefits from job to job.

Also speaking at the meeting was John Tisdale, Saanich M.L.A., who charged that Liberal politics had resulted in 50 per cent less homes being built in Canada last year.

At the same time, the government was encouraging more immigrants here.

"The Liberals obviously believe in promoting hardship, not friendship with new Canadians," Mr. Tisdale said.

$9 Billion in Tory Promises

External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday that if Progressive-Conservative election promises were put into effect, it would cost Canadians another $9,000,000,000 more than present federal budgets.

And if Social Credit were elected, he told an outdoor political rally in Kamloops, it would cost even more.

"Perhaps they are making these promises because they know they won't be elected," Mr. Pearson said.

At another meeting later in the day at Vernon, Mr. Pearson said, another world war "will make the last two bad though they were, look like sham battles."

"Military might won't save peace," he said.

"The best place in which to solve international problems is in the United Nations, which with the Commonwealth and NAT, make for peace."

Mr. Pearson wound up his three-day B.C. tour Thursday night and flew to Calgary this morning.

Highways Minister Gagliardi Thursday night described the federal government as a group of ancient men who should be allowed to retire on the recently increased old age pension.

The B.C. minister was visiting Brandon in the course of a Prairie campaign tour.

Advance Polls for Some Voters

Some people will be able to cast their ballots before the rest of the country goes to the polls June 10.

A few groups are entitled to use advance polls if they are likely to be absent on voting day in the course of their work.

The privilege is limited to members of the RCMP, commercial travellers, fishermen, and those working in transportation services — railways, ships and air services.

The advance polls will be open on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday before election day.

In Victoria riding the location will be the returning office at 1136 Government. There will be two polling places in Esquimalt-Saanich: 497 Beacon Ave. in Sidney, and the Women's Institute Hall at Royal Oak.

A national, non-partisan "get-out-the-vote" campaign was launched today by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Some 760 member boards of trade and chambers of commerce, as well as 2,300 member companies, are being asked to co-operate in a drive to encourage people to go to the polls June 10.

A program of posters, lectures, door-to-door campaigns and pamphlets will be carried out.

Raymond Dupuis, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said that in the 1953 federal election more than 2,500,000 Canadians failed to vote.

"Democracy cannot long survive this kind of indifference," he said.

ATHLETICS POPULAR

Britain has 3,000 athletic clubs and hundreds of amateur boxing clubs—200 in London alone.

Prosperity Proof Of Fiscal Policy, Says St. Laurent

Nation Can't Afford Opposition's Program

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says federal taxes will rise and prosperity will be threatened if any of the opposition parties are voted into power on June 10.

"The sort of government you are being promised by all three opposition parties these days are, in my opinion, the sort of government that Canada literally cannot afford," the Liberal leader maintained here.

He spoke before a capacity crowd of some 2,500 in the London arena where he received three standing ovations. Two hecklers made outbursts. One was ejected by police.

Replying to Progressive Conservative charges that the Liberals had overtaxed Canadians, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"Any common-sense fiscal policy for Canada requires, first of all, a resolute refusal to give in to the almost frantic, often ill-advised, usually ill-timed and frequently extravagant demands of the opposition parties."

And in both places he reiterated his statement that a vote for a third party candidate would be a vote for continua-

WANTS 2-PARTY SYSTEM RETURNED

Socreds, CCF Don't Rate In East, Says Tory Chief

MINNEDOSA, Man. (CP)—John Diefenbaker is campaigning hard to swing support in Western Canada to his Progressive Conservative party from CCF and Social Credit ranks.

He predicted Thursday night at Dauphin, 75 miles north of here, that the two other parties mentioned will not elect more than two candidates east of Manitoba. He said the western provinces are "the major fighting ground" for the June 10 election.

The Conservative leader then drove to this western Manitoba community to continue his appeal for a return to "the two-party system" in federal politics.

PRAIRIE LANGUAGE

In a quip that rang a bell with a farm-minded audience in this wheat area he said:

"You can't mix number three tough with number four smutty and come up with number one hard."

And in both places he reiterated his statement that a vote for a third party candidate would be a vote for continuation in power of the Liberal party.

"The Liberals believe in the great principle of divide and rule."

Mr. Diefenbaker made a rugged 800-mile swing by plane and automobile as he flew from Winnipeg more than 400 miles northwest to Flin Flon, northern mining centre, and back to Dauphin for a speech to some 225 at a supper meeting.

MOVES WEST TODAY

He capped his day, last of a three-day Manitoba tour, before an audience of an estimated 1,000 in the armories of this town of 2,300 population. Groups came from as far away as Souris, 70 miles south, to help fill the 800 seats and add another 200 in standing room at the back of the hall and in a hallway.

He moves into Saskatchewan today with speeches at Kipling and Regina and in the following two days will travel through Alberta and into British Columbia.

He is expected to repeat his appeal for a return to two-party politics—Liberal and Conservative—in those three provinces, which in the last election returned 18 of 23 CCF members elected and all of the 15 Social Crediters. In the last Parliament the Conservatives had one member from Saskatchewan—Mr. Diefenbaker himself—two from Alberta and three from British Columbia.

STARTED UNEF IDEA

Speaking here, he waved a Liberal election pamphlet which, he said, took credit for the government for last fall's establishment of the United Nations Emergency Force for the Middle East.

He said he himself had made such a proposal in January, 1956.

GRAHAM CRUSADE

'We Heard The Singing And Went In'

NEW YORK (AP)—The spine-tingling vibrancy of thousands of voices blending in lyric gospel hymns is an impressive feature of the Billy Graham evangelistic crusade which today rolled into its third day in vigorous fettle.

"We heard that singing and decided to go in," said one of a group of soldiers Thursday night. They were among 13,000 persons who streamed into Madison Square Garden for the second night of Graham's six-week stand in New York.

No telling how many were drawn in by the choir warming up, but the soaring tones float out to the street, a rare contrast to the thumping juke boxes and jive in nearby bars.

Familiar, rhythmic old hymns are chosen for the massed singing, instead of heavy, formal church music, and strains of Trust and Obey and What a Friend We Have in Jesus make the rafters throb.

MUSIC CASTS SPELL

Song leader Cliff Barrows slices and slams the air, his body arching, swooping and stretching, as he leads the 1,500-voice choir. The whole congregation, frequently joins in.

Whatever spell the music weaves, Graham adds to it a persuasive finale after he steps to the microphone.

Thursday night, when he made his plea for new believers to come forward "and accept Christ as your personal lord, master and savior," about 545 persons responded.

On the night before, a count of interview cards showed 704 had taken such a step, although the preliminary estimate was given as only 485. Even that was a record first-night number for a Graham crusade.

WOMAN FALLS DEAD

One woman collapsed and died at the outset of the services Thursday. She was identified as Mrs. Gertrude Mabray, 54, of New York.

Attendance Thursday fell below the opening turnout, when 18,500 filled the garden, but Graham said the 13,000 surpassed any second-night crowd at any of his campaigns.

"The first 10 days of a crusade are always the most difficult," he said. "There is not quite the spilt in the early days that develops as we go along."

Nonetheless, it was a huge congregation to which Graham preached, and he unleashed a hard-hitting sermon on sin and its fruits—with special emphasis on sin in New York City.

"You're guilty!" he said, spearing his finger at one section of the crowd after another. "I'm guilty. We're all guilty!" He closed his eyes, raised his hands skyward, and said feelingly: "I stand here tonight and say I, too, am a sinner. I have broken the laws of God.

"We are morally sick."

Singer Edith Piaf Divorced in Paris

PARIS (UP) — French singer Edith Piaf and her bandleader husband Jacques Pills have been divorced by mutual consent after four years of marriage, it was announced today.

The Paris tribunal held final hearings in the case Thursday. In preliminary hearings, Miss Piaf had said their married life had been disrupted by their careers, which kept them apart much of the time.

Elvis Hospitalized, Tooth Cap in Lung

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A porcelain tooth cap has put Elvis Presley in the hospital. The singer swallowed the cap Tuesday during a film dance number at MGM. It passed through the windpipe and into the lung. Wednesday he was taken to hospital, where a doctor retrieved the cap. Presley is expected to be out of action for another day or two.

Famed Painter Picasso Too Tired to See Russ

CANNES, France (AP) — The Russian delegation to the Cannes Film Festival paid a call at Pablo Picasso's villa this week, but the famed painter sent out word by a servant that he was too tired to see anybody. The Spanish-born artist is a member of the French Communist party but he has given hints of some disenchantment since the Hungarian revolt.

Sid Caesar Quits TV Job —7 Years Early

NEW YORK (AP) — Television comedian Sid Caesar ended his 10-year contract with the National Broadcasting Company Thursday.

The contract had seven years to go but NBC regretfully let Caesar out. He will finish out the season which ends May 25. A spokesman said Caesar has no definite future plans but is expected to come up with something "within a month or so."

It has been common knowledge that Caesar's show was having sponsor trouble. It costs from $110,000 to $120,000 a week and NBC cannot afford to carry it on a sustaining basis—without sponsorship. The show has fallen behind the rival Lawrence Welk Show on ABC-TV.

In nine years on TV, Caesar set a longevity record for a TV comedian. He once ranked as TV's best performer.

He is the second of the big-name Saturday night comedians to face up to the uncertain future. Jackie Gleason on CBS is having difficulty deciding what to do next year. He is not expected to continue his weekly show.

IF YOU WANT MY ESTATE 'Make Your Point' Says Dead Captain

BASINGSTOKE, Eng. (UP) — Norman John Mead, a happy-go-lucky former army captain, specified in his will that his relatives roll dice for his estate and preferably on the day of his funeral.

The 29-year-old bachelor was killed in a sports car crash on the oil-rich island of Bahrain in the Persian Gulf three months ago, and his will was read Thursday in court.

Nothing came out quite right. He had instructed, "Put my ashes in the dustbin nearest the Southampton Crematorium," but he was buried in the desert.

He listed a number of small bequests to his nephews and god-children, the remainder to be settled when "my five brothers and sisters will throw

PACKING CHARGED Congress to Probe Ike's Appointments

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Congress is about to look into charges that President Eisenhower has been "packing" federal regulatory commissions with men who oppose the national will and, in some cases, hamper congressional programs.

The House of Representatives has just voted $250,000 for an 18-month study of the regulatory commissions, which rank as one of the principal arms of government in the United States.

In Canada, with a 22-man federal cabinet to conduct the country's business, regulatory commissions are relatively few. In the United States, limited by a 10-man cabinet, many of the functions which normally would fall on the cabinet are handled by the commissions.

BROAD POWERS

The commissions number approximately 20, many of them quasi-judicial bodies with broad powers for policing business and other public operations. For example, the interstate commerce commission runs the railroads, the federal power commission handles such controversial subjects as public versus private power, the federal communications commission passes on radio and TV licences and the federal trade commission rules over business.

The inquiry, which could become one of the hottest of the current session of Congress, is the second investigation into the commission set-up in recent months. In January, a sub-committee of the House small business committee brought in a report charging the administration had broken down the "independent" character of certain commissions by the type of men appointed to them and new rules being adopted.

CHAIRMAN PICKED

In the past, the regulatory commissions named their own chairmen. Under a new procedure adopted by the Eisenhower administration, the president picks the chairman who carries on a liaison with the White House. Since he took office in 1953, Eisenhower has re-appointed only one commissioner named by the Truman administration. Others have been new appointees.

The White House obviously felt, some observers suggested, that the commissions needed a drastic overhaul after 20 years of Democratic rule.

Herbert Lehman, former Democratic senator from New York, charged recently that the White House, in replacing all five members of the securities and exchange commission, picked men representing the industry — Wall Street—they are supposed to regulate.

This, Lehman suggested, was "like making the coach of the home team the umpire of the game."

IRMA, Alta. (CP) — David Glasgow, 14, was killed Thursday when hit by lightning in this community, 100 miles east of Edmonton, police said.

The boy was playing in a school yard with other children when the lightning struck. No inquest will be held.

TIGHT MONEY BLAMED

Canadians Induced To Borrow in U.S.

LONDON (CP)—The Financial Times says the Canadian government's tight money measures have left Canada in a "highly vulnerable condition" on the external payments side.

In an article by Lombard, its banking and finance expert, the newspaper says, "one of the most striking features of the international currency markets has been the sustained display of strength by the Canadian dollar in the face of the rapid deterioration in the country's current account balance of payments."

SO DOES INFLOW

The reason, says Lombard, is that as the current account deficit gets larger, so does the net inflow of capital into Canada.

"The interesting thing about the big jump in Canadian borrowing abroad in the form of new capital issues between 1955 and 1956 is that it appears to have been stimulated to a very large extent by the severe tightening of monetary restrictions in the Dominion itself during the last couple of years."

Six-Month Term For Forgery

Jail terms of six months concurrent on each of four forgery charges were given Jackie Leo Wilkinson, Maple Bay, in city police court today.

He was convicted for writing cheques totalling $2,583, using two forged names, for which he obtained goods from four city businesses.

A probation report and four character witnesses testified to Wilkinson's previous good reputation, but Magistrate H. C. Hall, in passing sentence, said the man's behavior was "not impulsive," but involved "deliberate, planned acts."

PENNY A CUSS

'Swear Box' Pays Lingual Dividend

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—

Bill Lowe likes young folk, but he doesn't like to hear them use words not in the dictionary. Bill, almost 70, is in charge of one of Moose Jaw's outdoor skating rinks.

During the winter, he came up with a "swear box" to cut down on the sort of thing a fellow will say when he gets accidentally bumped to the boards in a pickup hockey game.

Bill's "penny a cuss" law had its effect on skaters at the rink, said Stu Kerr, city superintendent of parks and recreation. "It's a amazing what a difference it made."

There was another benefit. The Moose Jaw branch of the Red Cross got $2 for its funds. The pennies in the swear box came to $1.63 and Bill Lowe made it up to even money out of his own pocket.

There's no doubt the youngsters go along with Bill's ideas. When he was being retired due to age, 300 children who use the rink from time to time, petitioned to have him retained. He was.

Firemen Useful In Yard Work, Says Foreman

OTTAWA (CP)—A CPR yard foreman today testified before the Kellogg royal commission that diesel engine firemen are useful in yard service.

Wellington Baker of Toronto said they are of assistance to engineers either in keeping lookout or in relaying signals from ground crews to engineers in switching operations.

Mr. Baker, a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (Ind.), was a witness in the commission's inquiry into the CPR proposal to eliminate firemen from yard and freight diesel locomotives. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers (CLC) is fighting the move.

Most of Mr. Baker's testimony was devoted to a detailed recital of various switching operations in the Toronto yards. He said there are some places in the yards where the absence of a fireman would necessitate positioning the ground crew in such a way that the operation would be slowed.

After today's hearing, the commission, headed by Mr. Justice Kellogg of the Supreme Court of Canada, took a week's recess until May 27.

HELPED RESCUE PILOT

City Airman Gets His George Medal

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two airmen who last year rescued an injured pilot from his flaming jet at Marville, France, Thursday were presented with the George Medal by Governor-General Vincent Massey during a one-day vice-regal visit here.

Mr. Massey also presented Queen's Scout plaques to five Manitoba scouts during ceremonies watched by more than 500 scouts in front of government house.

Ft. Lt. R. G. Morgan, 26, of Vancouver, and LAC Harry John Waters, 28, of Victoria, received the George Medal for their actions in the rescue of Ft. Lt. E. L. Fine, 21, of Montreal and London, Ont.

Ft. Lt. Fine's Sabre stalled and crashed while coming in for a landing at the RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing. Both airmen honored Thursday pulled the pilot out while the jet and its ammunition burned fiercely.

In the citation read by Lionel Massey, the governor-general's secretary, the airmen were honored for their "courageous and sustained rescue efforts." The parents of both men attended.

For Ft. Lt. Morgan it was the first of two important occasions. He will be married May 25 at Banff, Alta.

The George Medal is second only to the George Cross in awards given to servicemen or civilians for acts of heroism not in the face of an enemy. Scouts Allan Whicker, St.

Vital; David Acland, Winnipeg; Eldon Kaufman and Jared Riddell of Minnesota, and Ernest Wilson of Selkirk received the scouting plaques.

First Painters' Workshop May 31 At Art Gallery

First of the spring-summer "workshops" for Vancouver Island painters will be held in the Art Gallery the weekend of May 31 to June 2.

He speaks at 8.30 p.m. Friday, May 31, at 10 a.m. Saturday, and at 10 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. Sunday.

Further workshops, at dates to be announced later, will be conducted by Victoria painters Jan Zach and Herbert Siebner. Courses are open to the public as well as practicing painters.

Thursday, May 30, at 8.30 p.m., a play will be presented by Victoria dramatist Rona Murray.

Entitled "My Love Is Dead," it was recently adapted for production by the BBC.

The play is based on the life of 18th century poet Thomas Chatterton. Professor Roger Bishop, Victoria College, will speak on Chatterton's life.

SCREWBALL WORLD

Oil Lights Light Up 'No Lights'

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Five oil lanterns burned at a barricade on a heavily travelled street so all might read a warning.

The warning said: "Danger! Gas main construction. No smoking, matches or open lights."

The night passed without anything happening, however.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—An 81-year-old man asked that a traffic ticket he received for going the wrong way on a one-way street be cancelled.

"My eyesight is so poor I couldn't see the one-way sign," he said.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Restaurant Sam Bookbinder says an elderly man peddling shoelaces always has managed to be in front of his restaurant when he goes to work, just in time to get a daily dose. But Bookbinder never took the shoelaces.

The other day Sam handed him the dime as usual and the older said:

"I don't like to bring this up, sir, but the laces are now 15 cents."

Eskimo Freed

DENTISTS HEAR DR. SHRUM

Today's Babies To Live to 100

Babies born in Canada today probably have a life expectancy of 100 years, Dr. Gordon M. Shrum, dean of the faculty of graduate studies at the University of British Columbia, said here Thursday night.

"When I was a boy our life expectancy was only 49," Dr. Shrum told 300 dentists and their wives attending a banquet given by the British Columbia Dental Association at the Empress Hotel.

"It has now gone up to 70 and I predict that when babies born today are as old as I am they will have a life expectancy of 100 years."

HUGE WELFARE COSTS

Dr. Shrum said there are now more than 150,000 people in Canada over 80 years of age and the steady increase in longevity, due to the advance of medical science, would mean a staggering increase in welfare costs.

"If we work a 30-hour week and retire at 60 the cost of pensions will be frightening," he said.

Discussing a dental faculty at UBC, Dr. Shrum said post-graduate studies should lead naturally to research work in dentistry.

"The only thing that is holding this up is money... you will only have a dental school in B.C. if you keep putting a dignified pressure on the government."

On the development of atomic energy, Dr. Shrum said an enormous amount of power is needed to provide for an ever-increasing population.

$5,000 MORE

"Every morning when you sit down to breakfast there are $5,000 more mouths to feed... 3,000 more babies are being born while I am speaking to you tonight."

"Many people in Canada today are worried because French-speaking Canadians are increasing much faster than English-speaking Canadians."

"Yet in Red China every minute of every day there is a net increase in population of 23. The poor French-Canadians haven't a chance against the Chinese."

Dr. Shrum said the release of atomic energy would have a greater effect on civilization than the industrial revolution of the 19th century.

And he pointed out that one pound of Uranium 235 is equivalent to about 3,000,000 pounds of coal.

CANADA HAS MOST

Canada, he said, has the free world's largest reserves of atomic energy.

"I only hope we will develop atomic energy in time for oil, coal and gas to be used for more useful purposes than simply burning. For instance, they could be the basis of a petrochemical industry."

Dr. Shrum was introduced by Dr. W. B. Milburn, president of the B.C. Dental Association.

Dr. L. W. Beamish was presented to the gathering as president-elect.

Entertainment was provided by the Oak Bay Bell Ringers conducted by E. A. Ames.

NEW FAST DRILLS

'I Was A Dentist'—Briefly

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

I have just drilled my first tooth—but not a tooth in anyone's head.

To hold a high-speed drill in your hand gives a fearsome sense of power when you know that the business end of the instrument is revolving at something like 150,000 revolutions per minute.

New drills are being demonstrated at the annual convention here of the British Columbia Dental Association and visitors are invited to try them out on specimen detached molars provided for the purpose.

ONLY A TOUCH

The new drills cut through teeth like a knife through butter and it requires only a touch of the whirling point to make a sizeable hole.

Dentists point out that the faster drills make life easier for themselves and the patient, because the operation is faster and less nerve-racking.

The drill emits a tiny jet of water to counteract heat friction—and some drills are capable of speeds up to 175,000 revolutions per minute.

SAVE BABY TEETH

Extraction of baby teeth is now being avoided by the use of a new re-mineralization technique.

Calcium hydroxide is poured into the cavity and this causes the growth of new dentine over the exposed pulp.

Only a few years ago a cavity of this type meant that the tooth had to be extracted.

"By saving the baby teeth through re-mineralization, the necessary space for permanent teeth is saved," says Dr. William Joiner, Vancouver, chairman of the association's public relations committee.

EARP'S 'FAST DRAW' MEETS TEST TONIGHT

CHICAGO (UP) — Famous Frontier Marshal Wyatt Earp, in the form of television actor Hugh O'Brien, and Chicago policeman Charles Mangal, 28, meet tonight in a public fast-draw gun duel.

Major G. T. Sunde, of the Shrine Temple Troop, set up the duel as part of the troop's annual benefit show after he heard of the dispute.

The feud started sometime ago when Mangal told some newsmen he didn't think Earp (O'Brien) was so hot as a fast-draw artist and was willing to meet Earp in a drawdown anytime.

"You might as well come in, too. Today's my day to deep clean with 'Lysol'."

"Lysol" freshens floors... thoroughly deep cleans. Gets rid of mess, muck, deodorizes completely. Because "Lysol" kills the source of odors, it helps keep things sweet—for days! Add "Lysol" to your cleaning solution! Every cleaning becomes a deep cleaning... with far less work.

Let Lysol do the dirty work

SHRUM-ISMS

"We have the five-day week. Now we are all looking forward to the five-day weekend."

"Our B.C. forests produce more newsprint than there is news fit to print."

"B.C. Electric doesn't provide the cheapest power in the world."

"The average Canadian has the equivalent of 250 horses in his garage." Having served with the Royal Horse Artillery in the First World War, I know the amount of shovelling that is saved by this."

"Everyone is living longer and many people today will live to be 100. Don't buy life insurance; buy annuities."

"A government which can spend $100,000,000 on giving us culture should be able to afford a dental school for B.C."

"Even in Victoria, the pace of life is quickening... you find that out when you navigate the roundabout."

"A mother told me recently she did not think her son was bright enough to earn his living without university training."

WHERE TRAPPED LAD LIES

Artist's drawing shows how large rescue tunnel is being dug in attempt to save seven-year-old Benjamin Hooper of Manorville, Long Island,

N.Y., who fell down narrow 24-foot well, Thursday. Loose, sandy soil is hampering workers in efforts to reach trapped lad. (AP Wirephoto.)

Hope Flickers for Boy Trapped in Narrow Well

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Stymied rescue workers turned to a top atomic research centre today for help in trying to save a seven-year-old boy trapped 19 hours in a dry well.

There were fears the race with time already was lost. The boy, Benjamin Hooper, 7, appeared to be covered with sand at a depth of about 24 feet in the narrow shaft.

Two trucks from the research centre, the Brookhaven National Laboratory, brought vacuum hose equipment in an attempt to draw sand out of the well.

Balked by sandslides from driving a tunnel horizontally to the boy, the rescue workers started a new tunnel slanting downward at a slight angle in hopes of better coping with the slides.

The boy tumbled into the well at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night while at play. He was able to talk and move, but then fell into silence.

Despite the gloomy outlook, Dr. J. H. Kris refused in mid-afternoon to give up hope.

"It's possible but very improbable that the boy is still alive," he said.

A fireman said the boy, alive for hours after he fell in, appeared to be entirely covered with sand. Rescue workers trying to reach the boy by digging a horizontal tunnel were blocked constantly by sand slides.

"I could only see something that looks like a root," said J. H. Warner, an Eastport fireman, after peering into the well with a searchlight.

"That's the only thing that shows. There was only a clean layer of sand otherwise." Hundreds of persons gathered in this central Long Island village to lend a hand in whatever way possible.

The well shaft was too narrow—three feet in diameter at the top and tapering to a few inches at the bottom—to permit rescuers to descend.

Fell in 5 Minutes After Well Dug

The boy tumbled feet first into the well only five minutes after his father had finished digging it. There was no water in it.

"Oh, my God, what have I done to deserve this?" the father cried.

Unable to reach the boy, he called help.

Five departments sent rescue equipment and ambulances.

The rescue operation went on through the night under the glare of searchlights and then on into the morning.

The father worked with the rescue workers until he collapsed.

MOTHER HYSTERICAL. The boy's mother, Betty, 30, learned by accident of the boy's plight. She is a telephone operator in the Riverhead office of the New York Telephone Co.

She heard a detective reporting the boy's fall to police headquarters and became hysterical. Friends drove her home.

She was given sedatives but couldn't sleep. She paced beside the well, and then in the house.

The father first lowered a rope, hoping the boy could grab it and be pulled up. That failed.

Then, within a half hour, firemen lowered an oxygen hose to a point near the boy's face. "Benny, can you hear me?" the father kept calling. "Move your fingers."

Until 2 a.m., the boy showed signs of life, either by talking or moving. Then he fell silent.

"If it's God's will, the little fellow is already asleep," the father said.

LIGHTED WELL. George Gydish of the Manorville fire department, spent the night lying on his stomach and shining a flashlight into the well.

"If Ben can see the light he won't be afraid down there," Gydish explained.

The accident was similar to the tragic case of Kathy Fiscus, 3, who fell 100 feet down an abandoned well casing in 1949 at San Marino, Calif. She was found dead after 52 hours of rescue operations.

Gessert Outdoes Beck In 'No-Answer' Probe

71 Refusals To Testify In 21 Minutes

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate labor racket committee charged today that a relative of Dave Beck simultaneously got $50,000 from the Teamster Union payroll and $51,000 from a company selling goods to the union.

Kennedy said union merchandising made $200,000 in 1953-55, mostly from sales to Beck's union.

The relative, Norman Gessert, invoked the fifth amendment to this and all other questions the committee shot at him as he began public testimony. He refused to answer 40 questions in the first 10 minutes, a record.

After 21 minutes, the refusals totalled 71 and threatened Beck's grand total of more than 200 refusals to answer queries.

Gessert even refused to confirm his statement of Thursday that he is an international organizer for the Teamsters Union and lives at 16730 45th Street Northeast in Seattle.

Gessert, a trim, grey-haired man with a stolid, craggy face, refused even to say that he knew his own attorney, Edward L. Carey, who sat beside him.

Gessert would not say that he knew Dave Beck, the committee's biggest target and president of the teamsters, the nation's biggest union, nor his cousin, Mrs. Beck.

Made Profits Out of Union Deals

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Gessert was employed by the Teamsters Union from April 15, 1954, until March 31, 1957, receiving $50,903.72 in salary during that time.

Kennedy said Gessert at the same time was employed by Union Merchandising Co., a firm whose principal income derived from sales to the Teamsters Union, and received $51,000 in salary from that company.

Kennedy said Union Merchandising Co. is owned by Beck's friend, Nathan Shefferman, and his son, Shelton Shefferman. Shefferman testified in March that he paid $85,000 of Beck's bills with union funds. He is a labor consultant for management, with about 300 clients, including many of the nation's largest department stores.

Kennedy said Gessert from 1935 to 1952 was on the payroll of the Retail Clerks' Union, which he described as a "captive" of the teamsters. He said that in this period Gessert also worked for the Lindsay Construction Co., which built Beck's luxurious lakeside home in Seattle.

Gessert's appearance was a sort of anti-climax to a merry-go-round Thursday with Beck.

Beck took the fifth amendment to all questions about his financial affairs, and the session wound up with chairman John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) urging that the Teamsters' Union conduct its own probe to see for itself whether Beck should be booted out as the union's president.

Egypt Will Fight Israel Ship Test

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt today declared her right to take "all measures" to defend herself in the event an Israeli test ship tries to sail through the Suez Canal.

The declaration came from Col. Abdel Kader Hatem, information director at the national guidance ministry.

Hatem said Egypt "has the right to defend herself in accordance with the 1888 Constantinople convention and to take all measures to maintain her security."

The 1888 convention assures freedom of passage through the canal in time of peace. Egypt still maintains belligerence rights against Israel as a result of the 1948 war.

Hatem said "Israel is only a toy in imperialist hands. She moves when she is ordered and stops when told to do so." He added:

"No power in the world will stop Egypt from exercising her right."

Israel to Await UN Debate on Suez

JERUSALEM, Israel (UP)—Israel will wait until after next week's Suez debate in the UN Security Council before deciding whether to send an Israeli test ship to the Suez Canal, a government spokesman said today.

The freighter Mars waited at Haifa loaded with 4,500 tons of potash and industrial goods for Japan. Officials pointed out sending the Mars to the canal would not constitute a "test" since the ship is owned by Norwegians and is under charter to an American firm.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, heavenly Father, for the revelation of truth by which our lives may be guided. As we discover the forces of nature which can put power in our hands, let not our little knowledge obscure Thy great truth: through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Thet Dave Beck crowd is whut y' might call taciturn.
I s'pose thet's a wide open convention th' dentists are holdin' here.
Th' Cougars might hev beat th' other teams but they couldn't lick th' empty seats.

HOLIDAY WEEKEND PREVIEW?

George Lindsay, B.C. motor vehicles superintendent, today hoped the above pictures would NOT be in the paper Tuesday as he appealed for sane driving over the holiday weekend. With his appeal, he coupled a warning: "To those who may have a desire to take chances it may be of interest to note that during the past week we have suspended 101 drivers' licences... slow down, save your licence—and your life." (See Also Page 2.)

Holidayayers on Move But Weather Doubtful

Victoria and the lower mainland was on the move today despite gloomy skies and spatters of light rain.

Thousands are hurrying to get somewhere else as the Victoria Day weekend approaches. Doubtful weather hasn't shaken the optimism of holiday crowds.

And Victoria weatherman William Mackie is pulling for them heartily.

Victorians have as much chance of getting to wear sun glasses and summer hats at home as on the mainland.

"A weather front moving across the coast refuses to weaken enough to let the sun shine through. We're having a poor day today," says the weatherman.

SHOWERS TONIGHT

And he saw showers continuing tonight and clouds hanging about on Saturday.

"Sunday could be an improvement—a little more sunshine. Monday is a little too far out of the picture—but it could be a fairly reasonable day, too." Temperatures will be even with little likelihood of warmer weather.

Trans-Canada Air Lines officials did not think the rush this weekend would surpass the movement of passengers at Easter. There were four extra flights scheduled today and eight extras will take to the air.

CAR SIDESWIPE AT HIGH SPEED, PLUNGES IN DITCH

St. Laurent's Brush With Death Third Scary Incident This Week

By VICTOR J. MACKIE

Times Ottawa Correspondent

BARRIE, Ont.—I watched Canada come very close to losing Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in a highway accident Thursday when the automobile he was travelling in at high speed sideswiped another car and went into the ditch five miles west of here.

The 75-year-old prime minister emerged from the wrecked car without a bruise and only slightly shaken up despite the fact it was his side of the car that suffered the severest damage. With other reporters, I ran down the highway in time to see Mr. St. Laurent climb out of the wrecked car. He managed a smile, then I heard him say without a quaver in his voice:

"I'm all right. I'll be all right."

It was the second mishap for the prime minister Thursday—the third accident of the week.

Tuesday his plane was diverted to Malton Airport because of weather in Ontario and had to make two attempts before landing on instruments, after circling the field for a half-hour.

Earlier Thursday, at Penetanguishene, a wooden barrier collapsed while the prime minister was setting nine-year-old Cathy Sauve on it for photographers.

Mr. St. Laurent fell backwards but held on to Cathy and neither was hurt. The pictures then were taken.

After the car accident the PM was remarkably composed considering the close brush with death. He had been sitting in the front right-hand seat—known to insurance companies as the "suicide seat" because of its high number of fatalities.

Driver of the car, Mrs. Pearl Payette, Midland, Ont., a widow, was credited with quick thinking when farmer Norman McGirr's car pulled out from a side road.

In the split seconds between the time her Cadillac scraped the side of the other car, she guided the 1957 sedan past heavy guy wires, over a large culvert and past a telephone pole.

The car landed on its wheels in the soft mud of the deep ditch off the pavement of the heavily travelled highway between Barrie and Camp Borden.

Mrs. Payette's car was travelling at 50 or 55 miles per hour at the time. Hers was the leading car in a long cavalcade carrying the prime minister's party, preceded by an Ontario provincial police cruiser. The speed limit is 50.

The party was attempting to make up time to try to get back on to schedule.

The cavalcade was en route to Camp Borden where a chartered Trans-Canada Airlines plane was waiting to fly the party to London, Ont., where Mr. St. Laurent addressed an evening meeting.

Cars well back in the cavalcade sometimes had to travel 65 and 70 miles an hour to catch up with the leading cars, when trucks or other traffic held them back.

New Drive on Traffic Deaths In Full Swing Across Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A new drive aimed at halting the spiraling traffic death toll is developing across Canada.

The campaign, spurred by 3,184 traffic deaths in the nation last year, is being carried out mainly by traffic engineers and legislators.

They're searching for methods of reducing what seems to be an inevitable yearly increase in fatalities.

Records show a rise in fatalities this year of about 5 per cent over last year.

Already this year 680 persons have been killed in highway mishaps.

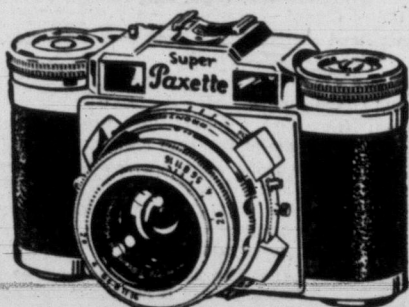

The 1956 death toll of 3,184

Monday. Most flights are booked solid.

CPR ferries are experiencing a similar rush on all trips out of and into Victoria, but not as at Christmas.

EXTRA BUSES

A few cabin reservations were still available for night sailings and there was some car space still unreserved.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines put on extra buses this morning and expects to use up to eight extras over the weekend.

"This is the start of the one-day excursions to and from Vancouver," an official stated.

A couple of busloads of Vancouverites are expected to arrive here via the Nanaimo ferry route on Monday.

IWA Vote Legal, Result 'Clear-Cut'

Jack MacKenzie, president, local 1-118, IWA, and chairman of the union's vote tabulating committee, today took strong exception to charges by defeated district presidency candidate Lloyd Whalen of ballot violations.

Mr. MacKenzie, in a prepared statement, said returns were "a true and correct report . . . by local unions."

"Tabulation was conducted with strict impartiality and in accordance with constitutional regulations prescribed."

Joe Morris was re-elected president of district 1, IWA, defeating Mr. Whalen, president of Vancouver and District Labor Council.

Said Mr. MacKenzie: "No grounds exist for protest. In their bitter disappointment the unsuccessful candidates have overlooked the fact that quibbling over minor technicalities will not alter a clear-cut decision made by a large majority."

Approximately 34,000 B.C. IWA members were eligible to vote.

SMILING, BUT DOES HE MEAN IT?

Taking batting practice before Thursday's game at Yankee Stadium, New York Yankees' outfielder Hank Bauer was still able to manage a sickly smile despite fact he is facing $250,000 damage suit arising out of his alleged off-

field slugging. Bauer and five other Yankees were involved in a night-club fracas, and a patron, claiming he was slugged and injured by Bauer, has threatened to file damage suit. Bauer denies throwing punches. (Wirephoto.)

Martin's Next Party May Be in Washington

NEW YORK (UP) — Billy Martin, Casey Stengel's "boy," has fallen out of grace with his New York Yankee bosses, and because of his part in the Hank Bauer night club brawl may be headed for Washington in a multi-player deal.

Martin, Bauer and four other Yankee players faced stern disciplinary measures by Stengel for staying out beyond the curfew prescribed for "good" ball players while celebrating Martin's 29th birthday until the early hours of Thursday morning.

The climax of the party was the slugging of Edwin Jones, a 42-year-old delicatessen owner. Jones claims the slugging was done by Bauer and threatens suit of $250,000. Bauer denies it and the Yankee management believes him.

But Stengel and the top brass are infuriated at the after-hours partying. They feel that Martin is the ring-leader in these bright-spot escapades. And sources close to the Yankees believe they are ready to deal Martin away, even though he long was regarded as Stengel's favorite player.

A reliable report had Martin, Andy Carey, Norm Siebern, Al Cicotte and a Yankee farmhand going to the Senators for Eddie Yost and a pitcher—either Camilo Pascual or Pedro Ramos. President Cal Griffith of the Senators is willing. And Charley Dressen, front office assistant, was due in New York today to talk business.

The deal may not be completed in that five-for-two form, but with the development of young infielders Tony Kubek and Bobby Richardson, Martin has become expendable. And the circumstance Yankees may let brass Billy go as an object lesson to other players with late-hour inclinations.

Stengel said last night he had not taken his players to task for their after-hours party, but he added ominously: "I generally know how to handle a case like this."

Besides Martin and Bauer, the players in the party were Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra, Whitey Ford and Johnny Kucks. All except Martin, who is not married, were accompanied by their wives.

Stengel's first disciplinary act was to take away Ford's pitching assignment against the Kansas City Athletics last night. He made Ford pitch pre-game batting practice. Stengel also dropped Bauer to the No. 8 spot in the batting order, even though a left-hander (Alex Kellner) started for the A's. And he benched Berra "because he's not hitting."

"I'm not pitching Ford tonight because I see by the papers that he was out late last night and might be a little tired," was Stengel's quip to reporters arriving early at the Yankee Stadium.

"I dunno if anyone got punched or not," he commented. "All I know is that my players were in a night club when they should have been home in bed. Why, as long as I've been in baseball there's been an unwritten rule that a pitcher goes to bed early the night before he's due to start. That's just common sense. Ford knew three days ago he was due to pitch."

"I know it was Martin's birthday, but there's 25 guys on this club, and then there's anniversaries, too," he continued. "What are ya gonna do, celebrate all of them?"

Walton, Zerkie Set Boxla Pace

Leaving only two goals for their teammates to share, Ron Zerkie and Bill Walton scored six goals each Thursday in the Diaper Division lacrosse at Stevenson Park to lead Saanich Tigers to their second win over Victoria City, 14-1.

Other scorers for the winners were Frank Alexander and Doug Holmes. The sole Victoria marksman was Russ Malcolm.

Pitchers Have Ball As Batters Suffer

By United Press

It's a slugger's era but those long-suffering pitchers have their days and nights, too. And a few more like yesterday will have the hitters asking who took the rabbit out of the lively ball.

It was almost as if the umpires shipped a collection of the old dead balls into play as the following pitching feats were accomplished:

1. Bob Turley, a last-minute replacement for Whitey Ford, pitched a four-hitter and started the season's first triple play to give the New York Yankees a 3-0 victory over the Kansas City Athletics. The New York staff now has a 2.71 earned run average for 24 games.

2. Sandy Koufax, 21-year-old bonus whiz, equalled the season's single game high of 13 strikeouts and yielded four hits in powering the Brooklyn Dodgers to 32 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

3. Lindy McDaniel, 21-year-old St. Louis Cardinal bonus boy, flipped a four-hitter and gained his first major league shutout with a 5-0 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

4. Bob Friend, scoring his first victory since April 28, scattered seven hits in pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 win over the Milwaukee Braves.

5. Jim Bunning struck out Ted Williams three times and hurled a five-hitter as the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox, 2-1.

6. Billy Pierce yielded three homers but had an eight-hitter for his fifth win in the Chicago White Sox' 8-3 triumph over the Washington Senators.

Fine pitching was also dominant in the other two games—both of which went 10 innings. The Cincinnati Redlegs, taking over undisputed possession of first place in the National League, shaded the New York Giants, 3-2, and the Cleveland Indians beat out the Baltimore Orioles, 4-3.

TRIPLE PLAY
Turley struck out seven and walked five behind a Yankee attack that included Mickey Mantle's sixth homer. Turley, who won his first game of the year, grabbed Alex Kellner's pop bust after walking two batters in the second to start the triple killing and choke off Kansas City's most serious threat. It was the second straight shutout for New York.

Koufax extended the Cubs' home losing streak to eight games with a brilliant performance in which both Chicago runs were unearned.

The Pirates knocked Milwaukee out of first place when Friend survived a ninth-inning rally to win his third game. Ed Matthews homered to open the ninth and Friend yielded three more hits before he finally retired the side.

Frank Bolling's home run got Detroit off in front in the first inning and he also contributed a single when the Tigers pushed over another run in the eighth. Williams doubled and scored the Red Sox' run in the ninth but his average dipped to .369.

Bubba Phillips smashed five straight hits, including a homer and triple, as the White Sox scored their fifth straight win and held first place in the American League by a half game. Two homers by Roy Sievers and one by Jim Lemon produced Washington's runs. Phillips, who entered the game with a .188 average, raised his mark to .265.

Kilburn Hopeful—'All Not Lost Yet'

The Victoria Hockey Club today withdrew from the Western Hockey League, turning its franchise back to league directors.

However, general manager-coach Colin Kilburn said that minority stockholders would take immediate steps to reform the club in an effort to save hockey for the city.

In a morning statement issued from the WHL annual meeting in Vancouver, league president Al Leader said:

"The Victoria Hockey Club Ltd. had withdrawn from the Western Hockey League.

"This act was necessitated by the fact that the majority stockholders—Lester Patrick, who owns 50 per cent, and Mrs. Nellie Hutchinson, 26 per cent owner, decided against their continued financial support of the club.

"The Victoria franchise was surrendered to the league. It is expected that new interests, including part of the minority stockholders of the defunct Victoria club, will reorganize a new entry for the city of Victoria."

The bomb-shell announcement was tempered by statement from Kilburn, who said on behalf of the team directors: "All is not lost by any means. We definitely plan to try to reorganize a new club in Victoria and plans to this effect are now being made. Everything in our power and in the power of the Western Hockey League will be done to keep professional hockey in Victoria.

"Victoria is too good a hockey city to lose the sport at this time. We have a fine core of loyal fans and it is for them that we are trying to keep the sport. We have an excellent rink and Victoria has been too bright a light in the WHL in recent years to give up now.

"It is our firm conviction that Victoria should not be without professional hockey and we will spare no effort to prevent its loss."

Need $30,000 to Start New Season

No official statement was made, but it is believed that the club will seek a new source of financial backing, either from an individual or from city business men.

While rumors flew thick and fast throughout the last part of the recently-concluded season that the Cougars would not re-enter the league next year, it had been thought that the franchise would be retained by the local directors if they could anticipate greater support next year.

The team suffered a serious loss in both fan support and finances this season.

It costs $18,000 to operate the team and the club took a damaging $28,000 loss. The previous year, it lost $10,000.

Every Team Hit by Prairie Trips

Kilburn drew up a streamlined budget, which he may present to the meeting in Vancouver, as a model for the Cougars and other WHL teams to follow in an effort to escape the financial avalanche that has threatened to engulf every team in the two-division league.

Among other things, the budget would call for only one prairie trip for each team. Last season, each team made three interdivisional trips at a total cost of close to $10,000. The three trips were believed to have hit every team heavily.

Until the franchise was turned over to the league today, city businessmen had owned approximately 25 per cent of the shares. Mrs. Hutchinson assumed 25 per cent ownership on the death of her husband.

Fred P. Hutchinson, former general manager of the club.

Patrick had assumed ownership of quarter shares held by his two sons, Lynn and Murray, when they declined to continue their association with the team.

The Victoria club's withdrawal leaves three franchises operating in the coast division: New Westminster, Seattle and Vancouver Canucks.

Edmonton Flyers have reported considering withdrawal from the prairie division, which also includes Brandon, Winnipeg and Calgary.

The Edmonton move was said to be under consideration as a means of publicizing the financial plight of minor league and forcing the National Hockey League to agree to mutually satisfactory player agreements.

Egad! Men vs. Gals In Softball Tourney

Tournament softball starts tonight at Central Park with the opening of the Senior A Men's Softball League Annual Invitation Celebrations Tournament when Arrow Furniture meets Mary's Coffee Bar at 6.30.

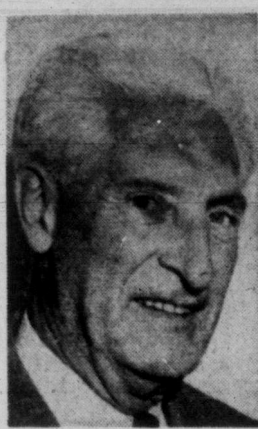

A slight switch will be noticed Sunday afternoon when the ladies invade what has previously been an all-male event. Victoria Polyettes Senior "A" Women will play Halfway House in place of Vancouver Pilseners who Thursday night confirmed that they would be unable to make the trip.

The game will be in the nature of an exhibition with Polyettes picking up Halfway pitchers and catchers while Jocelyn Richmond, Ruth Oster and Lorna Pollock form Halfway's battery.

Seven teams will compete for prize money with Mary's, Navy and Firefighters from Senior "B" and the entire Senior "A" League.

Games will be played at 2.30 and 6.30 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday with $80 standing for the winners of the tournament and other cash prizes going to runners-up.

MISSSES THIRD RECORD

Darrell Hops Away To Esquimalt Lead

Darrell McIntyre took another hop, step and jump in the direction of the junior boys' aggregate championship in the annual Esquimalt High School track and field meet Thursday as field events wound up in preparation for today's track competition.

McIntyre, who had set two records in junior competition in the broad jump and high jump earlier in the meet, missed his third mark by a scant two inches Thursday in the hop, step and jump event, open to both juniors and seniors.

However, his 39' 5" was not enough to win. He was forced to take second spot behind Sergi Gibson, who finally set a new record with a tremendous 39' 10" lunge.

However, the second-place finish gave McIntyre a commanding lead in his division, with a total of 13 points.

In the over-all house totals, House I went into today's cinderwork with a comfortable 11-point bulge over House IV, last year's winners, who have 71 points. House II and House III are trailing with 48 points apiece.

ARMY BAND TO ESCORT QUEEN FROM DOCKSIDE

Victoria May Queen Sue Pearson will alight from the yacht "Iorana" in the Inner Harbor tonight at 7.15 to open a long weekend of festivities for her "subjects."

With her princesses Grace Chew and Annlyn Florence, she will be greeted at the docks by Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee, and George, Geddie, Junior Chamber of Commerce queen-crowning chairman.

The queen's parade will be escorted by the 5th Medium Battery Band to the steps of the Legislative Buildings at 7.30 p.m. for the 20-minute crowning ceremony.

Honor guard at the steps will be Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, flanked by trumpeters from the Queen's Own Rifles, and step guards from the RCMP.

Queen Sue will be crowned by Mayor Percy Scourrah. Victor Fuggle, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will present a trophy to the Queen and a replica of the trophy to Marilynne Dawson, 1956 Queen.

Parade will move off at 8.05, proceeding north on Government to Yates, down Douglas to the Crystal Garden.

MONTE ROBERTS

There is one sure way to gain popularity in the city of Victoria these days.

Join the Kinsmen and get yourself appointed to the committee responsible for deciding how to get rid of the Bingo profits.

The way things are going, the Kinsmen are having more attendance danced on them than a rich uncle who hasn't made his will yet.

The only trouble the Kinsmen are having, they aren't certain whether they are being loved for themselves alone, or whether their popularity results from money in the bank.

And there are certainly some weird efforts to woo them. The latest suggestion, that the Kinsmen loan $20,000 to the city so the city can put a new floor in the arena, is a real lulu.

The Kinsmen may as well finance a new floor for the arena.

They have already financed it to the extent of several thousand bucks, via rentals and concessions.

But my advice to the Kinsmen is, take advantage of your popularity while it lasts.

Because, as soon as you announce which project you're going to support, 999 people will howl in protest.

And while we're in a somewhat jaundiced mood, let us have a look at B.C. centennial preparations.

As far as these tired old eyes can see, something is missing.

And that something is a sense of excitement, of light-hearted amusement.

There are plenty of ponderous preparations for truly worthwhile projects, and I venture to say we will be up to our shoulders in Culture before the year 1958 has passed away.

But where are the fun and games? The whoop-de-do, the spirit of Mardi Gras, or even of the good old days?

The only bright spots to relieve the over-all grayness of the centennial picture to date have been the Sasquatch (a bit overdone) and Century Sam (very much underdone).

If the centennial celebrations are to attract tourists, let's put a little life, a little pep, and a lot of laughs into our effort.

The way things are going, I am afraid the celebrations will go down in history as the 100 years' bore.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Deputy minister of the department of veterans' affairs, G. Lucien Lalonde, will arrive in Victoria Tuesday, May 21, on a departmental inspection tour. No public appearances are slated.

Before coming to Victoria the deputy minister will attend the opening of the B.C. provincial command Canadian Legion convention at Cranbrook, May 19 to 20.

Program of music by the RCAF's Tactical Air Command band announced for Monday night will be held Sunday at 9 p.m. in the Royal Theatre.

Free concert is sponsored by Greater Victoria Celebrations' Association.

The Vancouver Rescue Centre today issued a notice to mariners warning that test firing of two-inch rocket flares will be carried out from Christopher Point, near Esquimalt, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day, May 21-24.

Victoria Labor Council Wednesday voted to support provincial civil servants in their wage demands, and urged VLC affiliates to provide financial help if the civil servants go on strike.

Chiefs and Petty Officers' Association (RCN) plan a dance at the Golden Slipper, starting at 8 p.m. Saturday.

M. R. M. Dale, Canadian commercial secretary newly appointed to Cape Town, South Africa, will be available to discuss trade with that area with local businessmen Tuesday next in the office of Deputy Trade Minister T. L. Sturgess.

Mr. Dale, previously at Cairo, Egypt, is on a Canada-wide tour to spark trade interest.

Esquimalt Golden Age Club meets in the Fraser Street Athletic hall Wednesday next at 2 p.m.

Smouldering bedclothes overcame Esquimalt soldier Roy Donnelly, 976 Esquimalt Road, when he dropped a lighted cigarette in bed shortly before midnight Thursday.

Esquimalt and HMC Dockyard firemen answered the call turned in by Mrs. Donnelly. Her husband was revived and taken for examination to HMCS Naden Hospital.

The bed was damaged by fire and water and the rest of the house sustained minor damage.

Island Tug and Barge Ltd.'s perky little towboat, Island Comet, will fire a high-pressure salute to Miss Victoria in the inner harbor at 7 p.m. tonight.

The Comet, which is equipped with fire-fighting equipment, will add a spectacular note to the aquacade honoring Sue Pearson.

Col. H. A. Phillips, 46, of Victoria, has been appointed military attaché to the Canadian embassy in Moscow, army headquarters announced Thursday.

He is presently chairman of the army establishment committee at Ottawa headquarters, which position will be taken by Col. Eric D. Elwood, 50, London, Ont.

St. Christopher's Church Guild home baking sale will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at Mt. View Pharmacy, Carey Road and Tillicum Road. Proceeds will go toward construction of a new church.

Lt.-Col. Cornelius Knaap, field secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda, will conduct an induction service for B.C. south division commanders Brig. and Mrs. Carl Hiltz at the Salvation Army Citadel tonight at 8. Brig. Hiltz was formerly trade secretary for the Canadian territory.

Douglas C. Smith, 22, born in Victoria and now a resident of Vancouver, was among graduates from UBC Thursday.

He received his bachelor of commerce degree with honors. His grandparents and other relatives live here.

This is the last day to get "shot" in Operation Polio.

Anyone who missed their appointment during the week, as well as those who signed up for Friday, have until 10 p.m. tonight.

You can report at either Royal Jubilee or St. Joseph's Hospital, where the first injections of Salk vaccine are being administered in the nurses' residences.

TRIBUTE TO QUEEN VICTORIA

TEENAGER'S ANSWER:

'Rowdy Youths Need an Outlet'

The last in a series of articles on the hoodlum problem in Victoria.

By DINAH KERR

What's to be done about rowdiness? Sure, you can mutter, as one person did, that the teenagers need "a good belt on the bugle."

But is that the solution? Or would it solve rowdiness to put extra policemen on the Yates Street patrol Friday and Saturday nights?

One city constable has estimated that the police could round up as many as 20 teenagers every night by enforcing traffic laws against driving without a muffler, parking more than 12 inches from the curb or taking corners against a red light without first coming to a full stop.

Just Seeking Spotlight?

Turn the spotlight on Yates Street, and the rowdies will feel obliged to perform for their audience.

"If everyone just ignored them," says the deputy chief, "they wouldn't be able to get the attention and the problem might solve itself."

At least one cafe owner doesn't agree. He suggested that the police department set up a "youth squad" similar to Vancouver's.

Youthful offenders would be marched off to the police station, where they would cool their heels until their parents arrived to pick them up.

"Most of the parents don't know what their kids are doing half the time," he said. "If they were given a play-by-play account, who knows?"

Why Boys 'Bomb Around'

"A Hostile Teenager," wrote "Did you stop to think why the boys bomb around town in their cars? Did you stop to think that there's not much else to do, besides movies?"

The people of Victoria don't want the streets being made into a dragging place, but also they don't want to do anything about it, except to go to the Law. Just what do you want from us teenagers? Hermits, maybe?"

David Woodworth, director of the Family and Children's Service, backs up the argument for a recreation centre.

The centre should be staffed by persons with some training in youth work, he said.

"Of course, the leaders of rowdiness might try to take it over, but if the centre were properly run, they would either be incorporated into the group or asked to leave. At least it would give the city a chance to salvage the kids

But then, what?

City police department has only two juvenile officers (last year there was one). Juvenile court meets once a week.

Social workers and juvenile officers have their hands full now preparing cases on the real "toughs" in the city—the girls who stay out all night with boys or do a heavy traffic in shop-lifting, the boys who break into small stores or steal cars.

If the police department put the heat on every young law-breaker in the downtown area, teenagers who really need help would be lost in a crowd of juvenile "cut-ups."

Besides, says Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer, "these kids love publicity."

Colorful IODE Ceremony Launches Holiday Weekend

Over 1,000 Attend Empire Day Service

More than 1,000 elementary school students and parents stood in the drizzling rain today to mark the annual IODE Empire Day service on the Legislative grounds.

Some 750 students lined the legislative steps, as flower-girls, their light frocks spotted with raindrops, placed bouquets at the base of Queen Victoria's statue.

The service was the first function planned for the long holiday weekend.

"We are apt to be confused in understanding our history because we live beside the large and powerful nation of the United States," guest speaker Attorney-General Robert Bonner, told the students.

"We, as Canadians, have a history that is just as significant."

SENIOR DOMINION

"Canada is the senior dominion in the British Commonwealth of Nations," he said. "We can be secure in knowing that in the history of our country and the commonwealth we have contributed much to the welfare of mankind."

Released from school to attend the ceremony, students travelled to the legislative buildings in chartered buses. Many participated as sea, air and army cadets, guides, scouts, sea rangers, brownies and cubs.

They led the singing of "Land of Hope and Glory," "O Canada" and "Land of Our Birth," with high piping voices.

Among them was a new Canadian from Estonia, Marje Molder, 12, who represented Margaret Jenkins School and the IODE junior chapter, Oak Leaf, as she laid her wreath of flowers at the statue's base.

IODE standard-bearers escorted a group, including Mayor Percy Scourrah, reeves of the municipalities, Dr. J. F. K. English and other officials of the department of education, to the front lines of the ceremony.

Prayer was led by Rev. Douglas B. Carr of Centennial United Church. The gathering also was addressed by Mrs. A. W. Smith, regent of Victoria municipal chapter, IODE.

Music was provided by the Central Junior Pipe Band, Sea Cadets Band, and Victoria Schools Pipe Band.

Woman Injured In Car Ditching On Sooke Road

Mrs. Sarah George, Elder Timber Co., Otter Point, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries after a traffic accident near Sooke at about 10.15 p.m. Thursday.

Her condition today was reported good.

The car, believed driven by her husband, Eddie George, apparently went out of control and into a ditch about six miles west of Sooke. There were no other injuries.

Six-year-old Wayne Paulson, 3854 Lancaster, was treated for superficial knee abrasions at St. Joseph's after he was in collision with a car at Douglas and Haynes at about 4.45 p.m. Thursday.

Cafeman 'Charlie' Dies; In Business Here 56 Years

Victoria restaurant operator for the past half-century, "Charlie" to his friends and acquaintances, has died.

Dun Chan, 80, born in Canton, China, died Thursday in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He had been a resident here for 57 years and entered the restaurant business in 1901.

At one time he operated the

Montreal Cafe, the White Cafe, the Tourist Cafe, and in 1930 took over the Panama Cafe where the present Drake Hotel is located. The cafe has since moved to Government Street, but the name remains the same.

Mr. Chan, who retired in 1950, saw meals increase from 15 cents "from soup to dessert" to present-day prices.

His business is being carried on by his sons. Funeral service will be held Saturday from Sands Mortuary at 3 p.m. with interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

CARS LEFT ON PARADE ROUTE TO BE TOWED AWAY BY POLICE

Assembly area and marching route for Victoria Day parade on Monday must be cleared of parked cars or police will order them towed away, Deputy Police Chief Harry Mercer said today.

Rectangle formed by Quadra, Bay, Chambers and Caladonia—the assembly area—must be cleared by 7.30 a.m. Monday.

Parade route from Pembroke and Cook, south on Cook, west on Pandora, south on Quadra, west on Yates, north on Douglas, west on Fisgard, south on Government to Superior and east on Belleville to Douglas, must be cleared of parked cars by 9 a.m.

Traffic on these streets will be allowed to 9.30 a.m., a half hour before the parade starts.

BEST IN AMERICA HERE

500 Camera Artists Arriving for Parley

Some 500 photographers, both amateur and professional, are registering at the Empress Hotel today for the third annual convention of the Photographic Society of America, northwest region.

Opening with sightseeing tours this afternoon, the convention will be a three-day photographers' workshop, with lectures by top North American photographers in the fields of movies, nature study, color and creative work.

Attending two conventions simultaneously is dapper, white-haired Dr. J. S. Bricker of Vancouver.

Dr. Bricker has been a dentist since 1919 and an amateur photographer since 1938—when a leg ailment forced him to give up golf.

He is combining these enthusiasms by attending both the 41st annual convention of the B.C. Dental Association and the photographers' convention.

FLITTING ABOUT

This afternoon, for instance, Dr. Bricker will be flitting between the photographers and a lecture on "Dental Medicine in Everyday Practice," given by Dr. Sol Silverman Jr., of the University of California.

If there is time, he will also attend annual meetings of the College of Dental Surgeons of British Columbia and the Dentists' Legal Protective Association of B.C.

Cigaret Thief Leaves in Hurry

A thief who apparently tried to steal 30 assorted cartons of cigarettes from Scott and Peden Ltd. store, 506 Cormorant on Thursday night was scared away.

A patrolling officer found a warehouse door unlocked and investigation showed an inside door leading to the grocery department had been opened by breaking a glass pane and releasing a catch.

The cigarettes were placed in a large cardboard box and taken to the rear of the store where they were found by police.

Value of the cigarettes would be about $100.

Victoria Girl Wins Second Pharmacy Prize

UBC announced today that Patricia Ann Burnett, of 2397 Musgrave, has won the Cunningham prize in pharmacy as well as the Dean E. J. Woods memorial prize of $50.

The Cunningham prize, carrying a $50 award for proficiency in all years of the course in pharmacy, was omitted in university prize list announced on Thursday.

reaction from dentistry," Dr. Bricker said. "I specialize in seascapes and character studies—and X-ray studies of patients' mouths, but that is routine work and not so exciting."

James A. McVie, APSA of Victoria started planning the photographers' convention five years ago.

"It was originally designed as a session for PSA members of B.C., Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. But we have received registrations from Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan, Alberta, New York, Michigan, California and Pennsylvania," he said.

Well-known photographers attending are Lowell Miller of Rochester, N.Y., leading pictorial artist; John R. Hogan, Wynnewood, Penna.; Alfredo Renfro, Santa Barbara, a leading nature authority; Jean Elwell, Detroit; Boris Dobro, Santa Barbara, and Rex Frost of Toronto.

Photographs depicting "Color in the Canadian Rockies" will be shown at 8 tonight.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. About a generation ago, HMS New Zealand, a battle cruiser of the British navy, visited Victoria. Will you please tell me what date that was? F.L.T.

A. The New Zealand, one of the largest warships ever to visit this port, arrived here July 25, 1913. Capt. Halsey (later Admiral Halsey) was in command. He and the officers of the ship were entertained at a round of functions befitting the traditions of Esquimalt as the naval base of Canada's Pacific coast.

Q. Is it known how the town of Pincher Creek, Alta., came to have that name? N.R.E.

A. The town is in the Macleod district, on Pincher Creek, a tributary of the Oldman River, and is on the Crownst branch of the CPR. The name appears in surveyors' reports as early as 1880 and is said to have originated in the fact that a pair of horseshoe pinchers or pinches found in a camp near the creek was identified as having belonged to a party of prospectors from Montana killed by Indians in 1864.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

THE BETTER HALF

"Something told me I should leave early tonight and for once she was right!"

SHOPPING GUIDE

Vegetable Shopping Time To Stock Up for Weekend

By PENNY SAVER

Some of the prices have gone up, while others have gone down and still more have stayed the same. That's the situation on the vegetable counters this week.

Local stores are still importing much of the produce sold, but locally-grown goods are coming to the fore. Green peas have gone up a bit and are now two pounds for 49 cents. Local spinach has gone up a bit, too, to two pounds for 35 cents. Egg plant is 43 cents a pound, and asparagus is the same price as last week, 29 cents a pound bundle.

PRINTED PATTERN

Local hot-house dessert tomatoes are the same price as last week, 39 cents a pound, and other desserts are 50 cents a pound. Celery is lower in price at 29 cents each. Broccoli, at two pounds for 43 cents, and green onions, at two bunches for 19 cents, are priced the same as last week.

Radishes are two bunches for 15 cents, and beets, two bunches for 39 cents. White turnips are 29 cents for two bunches. Gradually, the price of strawberries is dropping. Now the price is 28 cents a box or two for 55 cents.

After checking the vegetable counters this morning, I roamed into a hardware section and found myself surrounded by utensils for camping. The coffee canister I noticed will be just the thing for those of you planning to "take to the woods" over the long weekend and to enjoy a stint of camping. This huge metal coffee pot is a honey-brown color with white tracery pattern all over it. As well as the regular handle, it has an over-the-top metal handle so that you can hang it over the fire. The pot is $4.95. Matching metal cups, of the same brown enamel with white design, are real handy ones. The mugs are 35 cents each.

For camping or for that awaited beach party, there are light-weight extension forks that make roasting wieners a cinch. The wooden handled forks extend to twice their original length, and you don't singe fingers trying to get your wiener or marshmallow browned. These are 39 cents each.

On Etiquette

Gastronomical Temptations for Teen-agers:

Will you please suggest a menu for a group of my son's high school friends who are coming to dinner. I want to serve something nice, but not so fancy that it will embarrass them. Should it be buffet style, or would they be more at ease seated at one big table?

Louise Davis Answers:

How about baked ham, turkey or roast beef? With any of them you can serve creamed, au gratin or scalloped potatoes and another vegetable, such as green beans or peas. Boys and girls of that age are inclined to pass up a salad as long as there is plenty of the "stick-to-your-ribs" dishes available. But I suggest it anyway for a balance. At that age, they aren't long on soups or appetizers, so I suggest that you eliminate them. I think that the young people might prefer being seated at one table, for regimentation is the easy way for teen-agers at dinner parties. Much depends on the general party habits of the crowd. A buffet dinner would be good experience for them, for each boy and girl would use initiative. They develop more assurance if they fend for themselves in serving their own food from a buffet table. I don't think that buffet style is so much to the other extreme that they would be unhappy if that's what you decide. Both have their advantages, so I think the answer would be whichever is the simplest way for you. For dessert—ice cream and cake is always a favorite with young people. It's not very original, but it is always safe.

Directs Pilot Project in Nursing School Evaluation

The Canadian Nurses' Association has announced the appointment of Miss Helen K. Mussallem to the staff of national office as director of the pilot project for evaluation of schools of nursing in Canada. Miss Mussallem is a graduate of the Vancouver General Hospital School of Nursing, with a diploma in administration, teaching and supervision from the University of Washington, a BN degree from McGill University and an MA degree from Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Miss Mussallem's experience has included positions as staff, operating room, head nurse and supervisor at Vancouver General Hospital. Following three years service with Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, she returned to the School of Nursing, Vancouver General Hospital, as senior instructor and assistant director of nursing education. Miss Mussallem's most recent position is associate director of nursing education, School of Nursing, Vancouver General Hospital.

Her appointment to the Canadian Nurses' Association staff becomes effective Sept. 1. The evaluation project is the first step toward a full-fledged program of accreditation of Canadian schools of nursing, to be undertaken by the nursing profession in Canada.

Under authority of provincial acts, all schools of nursing in Canada are approved. The approving agency may be the provincial nurses' association, as in British Columbia; the provincial university, as in Alberta; or the provincial department of health as in Ontario. Approval is compulsory and is based upon standards which are designated in the nursing act or in regulations authorized by the act. Accreditation is voluntary. It is recognition of excellent evidence that the accredited school is maintaining high standards of education.

The primary aim of an accreditation program in nursing is to improve nursing service by improving the preparation of nurses for service. This is accomplished by the assistance given to schools through the accrediting process in evaluating their own programs and effecting improvements where weaknesses are found.

As an outcome of the evaluation project which Miss Mussallem will direct, 20 schools will be visited, procedures and criteria established and personnel trained.

7 Entries To Contest Preakness

Iron Liege 4-5;
Bold Ruler 2-1

BALTIMORE (AP)—Seven colts, headed by Calumet Farm's Kentucky Derby winner Iron Liege, were entered today for Saturday's 81st running of the $100,000-added Preakness.

The strapping son of Bull Lea became an official entry after the Pimlico racing secretary's office was opened. When the 10.15 a.m. deadline arrived, these others also had been named to start:

Bold Ruler, Wheatley Stable star trained by 82-year-old Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons.

Federal Hill, owned by Clifford Lusk.

Insweet, the Roslyn Farm nominee which finished second by a length to Bold Ruler in the Preakness prep last Monday.

Nah Hiss, owned by Mrs. Jules Schwarz.

A SURPRISE ENTRY

Promised Land, a son of Palestinian and the nominee of trainer Hirsch Jacobs' wife, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs.

Inside Tract, whose entry took Pimlico officials by surprise that they had to telephone the jockey club in New York for identification of his owners, D. M. Stable. The stable is operated by Raymond DeBrino and Joseph Martino.

The odds-guessers figured Iron Liege will be a 4-to-5 favorite in the 1 3/16-mile test, which with the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes helps make up the triple crown for three-year-old thoroughbreds. Bold Ruler, fourth in the derby, was 2 to 1 in the Preakness-even line.

Paul Martin Speaks Here Thursday

He flies to Parksville in the early afternoon and will speak at a meeting there at 2.30 p.m. Mr. Martin will address a public meeting at Nanaimo at 8 p.m. and will return by ferry to the mainland afterwards.

Israel to Await UN Debate on Suez

JERUSALEM, Israel (UP)—Israel will wait until after next week's Suez debate in the UN Security Council before deciding whether to send an Israeli test ship to the Suez Canal, a government spokesman said today.

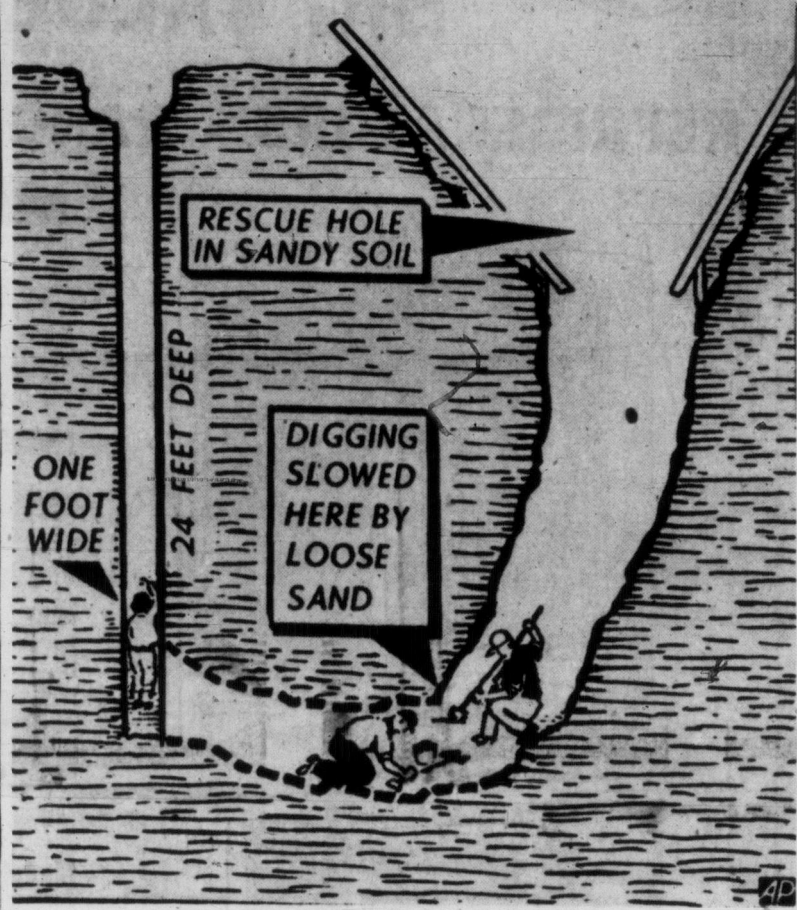

The freighter Mars waited at Haifa loaded with 4,500 tons of potash and industrial goods for Japan. Officials pointed out sending the Mars to the canal would not constitute a "test" since the ship is owned by Norwegians and is under charter to an American firm.

Holidayayers on Move But Weather Doubtful

Victoria and the lower mainland was on the move today despite gloomy skies and spatters of light rain.

Thousands are hurrying to get somewhere else as the Victoria Day weekend approaches.

Doubtful weather hasn't shaken the optimism of holiday crowds.

And Victoria weatherman William Mackie is pulling for them heartily.

Victorians have as much chance of getting to wear sun glasses and summer hats at home as on the mainland.

"A weather front moving across the coast refuses to weaken enough to let the sun shine through. We're having a poor day today," says the weatherman.

SHOWERS TONIGHT

And he saw showers continuing tonight and clouds hanging about on Saturday.

"Sunday could be an improvement—a little more sunshine. Monday is a little too far out of the picture—but it could be a fairly reasonable day, too."

Temperatures will be even with little likelihood of warmer weather.

Believed Dead, But Rescue Crew Trying New Tack

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (AP)—Efforts to tunnel to a boy trapped in a dry well 20 hours failed completely today. Frantic rescue workers turned to new methods.

There were fears the boy, Benjamin Hooper, 7, already was dead at a depth of 24 feet in the narrow shaft. From atop the well, sand appeared to cover him.

"We are not getting anywhere at all with the technique we are using," said Phil Corso, a Suffolk County deputy sheriff.

The rescuers had driven a vertical shaft parallel to the well, and had attempted to tunnel horizontally from that to the boy but sand slides blocked every attempt to drive the tunnel through.

The new plan was to edge a seven-inch pipe into the narrow well shaft to prevent more sand from falling on the boy.

DRAG DOWN WALL

Then earth movers were put to work to enlarge the parallel vertical shaft considerably so that 30 to 40 men could descend in it and drag down the wall of the well with picks and shovels.

The rescue crews also turned earlier to one of the U.S. atomic research centres for help.

Two trucks from the research centre, the Brookhaven National Laboratory, brought vacuum hose equipment in an attempt to draw sand out of the well.

Balked by sandslides from driving a tunnel horizontally to the boy, the rescue workers started a new tunnel slanting downward at a slight angle in hopes of better coping with the slides.

The boy tumbled into the well at 7.30 o'clock Thursday night while at play. He was able to talk and move, but then fell into silence.

Despite the gloomy outlook, Dr. J. H. Kris refused in mid-afternoon to give up hope.

"It's possible but very improbable that the boy is still alive," he said.

A fireman said the boy, alive for hours after he fell in, appeared to be entirely covered with sand. Rescue workers trying to reach the boy by digging a horizontal tunnel were blocked constantly by sand slides.

"I could only see something that looks like a root," said J. H. Warner, an Eastport fireman, after peering into the well with a searchlight.

"That's the only thing that shows. There was only a clean layer of sand otherwise."

Hundreds of persons gathered in this central Long Island village to lend a hand in whatever way possible.

Egypt Will Fight Israel Ship Test

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt today declared her right to take "all measures" to defend herself in the event an Israeli test ship tries to sail through the Suez Canal.

The declaration came from Col. Abdel Kader Hatem, information director at the national guidance ministry.

Hatem said Egypt "has the right to defend herself in accordance with the 1888 Constantinople convention and to take all measures to maintain her security."

The 1888 convention assures freedom of passage through the canal in time of peace. Egypt still maintains belligerence rights against Israel as a result of the 1948 war.

Hatem said "Israel is only a toy in imperialist hands. She moves when she is ordered and stops when told to do so." He added:

"No power in the world will stop Egypt from exercising her right."

Tokyo Students Jeer British Bomb Tests

LONDON (AP)—Britain announced tonight that her first hydrogen bomb test explosion in the Pacific was "in the megaton (1,000,000 tons of TNT) range."

TOKYO (UP)—Ten thousand and jeering Japanese students waving banners proclaiming "British fools" and "ban H-bomb tests" converged on the British embassy today and put it in a virtual state of siege.

More than 1,000 police were rushed to the embassy armed with long white riot sticks, pistols, short clubs and tear gas to stop the demonstrators against Britain's current Pacific H-bomb tests from forcing their way into the compound.

After the leftist-inspired demonstrators had gone on for several hours, the embassy agreed to receive a delegation of four student leaders.

The four were pushed out of the compound shortly afterward by C. F. Hill, second secretary of the embassy, who said they had become abusive inside the embassy.

As evening approached the demonstrators gave no sign of dispersing and police prepared for an all-night vigil.

All traffic was stopped on the broad street separating the embassy compound from the Imperial palace mast.

New Drive on Traffic Deaths In Full Swing Across Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A new drive aimed at halting the spiraling traffic death toll is developing across Canada.

The campaign, spurred by 3,184 traffic deaths in the nation last year, is being carried out mainly by traffic engineers and legislators.

They're searching for methods of reducing what seems to be an inevitable yearly increase in fatalities.

Records show a rise in fatalities this year of about 5 per cent over last year.

Already this year 680 persons have been killed in highway mishaps.

The 1956 death toll of 3,184

compared to 2,650 fatalities in 1955.

In 1956, 73,594 persons were injured.

The nation has more than 4,000,000 vehicles, a record high, and they are being used more than ever before.

RECORD HIGHS

Ontario, Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and New Brunswick all reported records in both registration and accident fatalities in 1956, and expect this year's figures will be still higher.

Ontario, which has the most cars, killed 1,180 persons.

In B.C. the toll was 309.

In most areas, the unprecedented rise in the number of motor vehicles has so far outstripped road building that traffic engineers describe more than 40 per cent of the roads as "intolerable."

AIM FOR UNIFORMITY

Authorities in both Canada and the United States have been working for the last 25 years to establish uniformity of education and road conditions.

They have sought to standardize roads, highway signs, legislation and education.

In March this year British Columbia passed a new Highway Traffic Act which adapts the uniform vehicle code recommended by the national committee on uniformity of traffic laws and ordinances in Washington.

Ontario, too, has revised its laws to come more in line with the general pattern. Fines were increased, and minimum levels of insurance set.

Nevertheless, fatalities to the end of April were up almost 17 per cent over the first third of last year.

On the Prairies, Manitoba has adopted strict testing, severe discipline and continued education.

Nevertheless, 1956, which increased registration, set a fatality record of 146, up 45 from the previous year.

The Saskatchewan legislature this year passed a law requiring motorists to submit to breath tests when suspected of drunken driving. Fatalities for the first third of this year are more than three times as high as the same period last year.

EXTRA BUSES

A few cabin reservations were still available for night sailings, and there was some car space still unreserved.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines put on extra buses this morning and expects to use up to eight extras over the weekend.

"This is the start of the one-day excursions to and from Vancouver," an official stated. "A couple of busloads of Vancouverites are expected to arrive here via the Nanaimo ferry route on Monday."

WHALEN CHARGES REJECTED

IWA Vote Legal, Result 'Clear-Cut'

Jack MacKenzie, president, local 1-118, IWA, and chairman of the union's vote tabulating committee, today took strong exception to charges by defeated district presidency candidate Lloyd Whalen of ballot violations.

Mr. MacKenzie, in a prepared statement, said returns were "a true and correct report . . . by local unions."

"Tabulation was conducted with strict impartiality and in accordance with constitutional regulations prescribed."

Joe Morris was re-elected president of district 1, IWA, defeating Mr. Whalen, president

of Vancouver and District Labor Council.

Said Mr. MacKenzie: "No grounds exist for protest. In their bitter disappointment the unsuccessful candidates have overlooked the fact, that quibbling over minor technicalities will not alter a clear-cut decision made by a large majority."

Approximately 34,000 B.C. IWA members were eligible to vote.

Cardinal to Get Hat

VATICAN CITY (UP) — Polish Primate Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski will receive the red hat and the ring of his rank from Pope Pius XII in a private ceremony Saturday, the Vatican said today.

FESTIVE FOWL FILCHED AT CROFTON HOTEL FETE

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — A rebuilt Crofton Hotel was opened here Thursday night, and all went well until gate-crashers made off with the festive fowl.

The large turkey, partly dissected, eventually was rescued by a flustered waitress who found it being devoured by two men.

BOY

The well shaft was too narrow—three feet in diameter at the top and tapering to a few inches at the bottom—to permit rescuers to descend.

The boy tumbled feet first into the well only five minutes after his father had finished digging it. There was no water in it.

"Oh, my God, what have I done to deserve this?" the father cried.

Unable to reach the boy, he called help.

Fire departments sent rescue equipment and ambulances. The rescue operation went on through the night under the glare of searchlights and then on into the morning.

The father worked with the rescue workers until he collapsed.

The boy's mother, Betty, 30, learned by accident of the boy's plight. She is a telephone operator in the Riverhead office of the New York Telephone Co.

She heard a detective reporting the boy's fall to police headquarters and became hysterical. Friends drove her home.

She was given sedatives but couldn't sleep. She paced beside the well, and then in the house.

The father first lowered a rope, hoping the boy could grab it and be pulled up. That failed.

Then, within a half hour, firemen lowered an oxygen hose to a point near the boy's face.

"Benny, can you hear me?" the father kept calling. "Move your fingers."

Until 2 a.m., the boy showed signs of life, either by talking or moving. Then he fell silent.

"If it's God's will, the little fellow is already asleep," the father said.

George Gydish of the Manorville fire department, spent the night lying on his stomach and shining a flashlight into the well.

"If Ben can see the light he won't be afraid down there," Gydish explained.

The accident was similar to the tragic case of Kathy Fiscus, 3, who fell 100 feet down an abandoned well casing in 1949 at San Marino, Calif. She was found dead after 52 hours of rescue operations.

CAR SIDESWIPED AT HIGH SPEED, PLUNGES IN DITCH

St. Laurent's Brush With Death Third Scary Incident This Week

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

BARRIE, Ont.—I watched Canada come very close to losing Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in a highway accident Thursday when the automobile he was travelling in at high speed sideswiped another car and went into the ditch five miles west of here.

The 75-year-old prime minister emerged from the wrecked car without a bruise and only slightly shaken up despite the fact it was his side of the car that suffered the severest damage. With other reporters, I ran down the highway in time to see Mr. St. Laurent climb out of the wrecked car. He managed a smile, then I heard him say without a quaver in his voice: "I'm all right. I'll be all right."

It was the second mishap for the prime minister Thursday—the third accident of the week.

Tuesday his plane was diverted to Malton Airport because of weather in Ontario and had to make two attempts before landing on instruments, after circling the field for a half-hour.

Earlier Thursday, at Penetanguishene, a wooden barrier collapsed while the prime minister was setting nine-year-old Cathy Sauve on it for photographers. Mr. St. Laurent fell backwards but held on to Cathy and neither was hurt. The pictures then were taken.

After the car accident the PM was remarkably composed considering the close brush with death. He had been sitting in the front right-hand seat—known to insurance companies as the "suicide seat" because of its high number of fatalities.

Driver of the car, Mrs. Pearl Payette, Midland, Ont., a widow, was credited with quick thinking when former Norman McGirr's car pulled out from a side road.

In the split seconds between the time her Cadillac scraped the side of the other car, she guided the 1957 sedan past heavy wires, over a large culvert and past a telephone pole.

The car landed on its wheels in the soft mud of the deep ditch off the pavement of the heavily travelled highway between Barrie and Camp Borden.

Mrs. Payette's car was travelling at 50 or 55 miles per hour at the time. Hers was the leading car in a long cavalcade carrying the prime minister's party, preceded by an Ontario provincial police cruiser. The speed limit is 50.

The party was attempting to make up time to try to get back on to schedule.

The cavalcade was en route to Camp Borden where a chartered Trans-Canada Airlines plane was waiting to fly the party to London, Ont., where Mr. St. Laurent addressed an evening meeting.

Cars well back in the cavalcade sometimes had to travel 65 and 70 miles an hour to catch up with the leading cars, when trucks or other traffic held them back.

man with a stolid, craggy face, refused even to say that he knew his own attorney, Edward L. Carey, who sat beside him.

Gessert would not say that he knew Dave Beck, the committee's biggest target and president of the teamsters, the nation's biggest union, nor his cousin, Mrs. Beck.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said Gessert was employed by the Teamsters Union from April 15, 1954, until March 31, 1957, receiving $50,903.72 in salary during that time.

Kennedy said Gessert at the same time was employed by Union Merchandising Co., a firm whose principal income derived from sales to the Teamsters Union, and received $51,000 in salary from that company.

Kennedy said Union Merchandising Co. is owned by Beck's friend, Nathan Shefferman, and his son, Shelton Shefferman. Shefferman testified in March that he paid $85,000 of Beck's bills with union funds.

He is a labor consultant for management, with about 300 clients, including many of the nation's largest department stores.

Kennedy said Gessert from 1935 to 1952 was on the payroll of the Retail Clerks' Union, which he described as a "captive" of the teamsters. He said that in this period Gessert also worked for the Lindsay Construction Co., which built Beck's luxurious lakeside home in Seattle.

Gessert's appearance was a sort of anti-climax to a merry-go-round Thursday with Beck.

Beck took the fifth amendment to all questions about his financial affairs, and the session wound up with chairman John McClellan (Dem., Ark.) urging that the Teamsters' Union conduct its own probe to see for itself whether Beck should be booted out as the union's president.

Firemen Useful In Yard Work, Says Foreman

City Airman Gets His George Medal

OTTAWA (CP)—A CPR yard foreman today testified before the Kellogg royal commission that diesel engine firemen are useful in yard service.

Wellington Baker of Toronto said they are of assistance to engineers either in keeping look-out or in relaying signals from ground crews to engineers in switching operations.

Mr. Baker, a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen (Ind.), was a witness in the commission's inquiry into the CPR proposal to eliminate firemen from yard and freight diesel locomotives. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) is fighting the move.

Most of Mr. Baker's testimony was devoted to a detailed recital of various switching operations in the Toronto yards. He said there are some places in the yards where the absence of a fireman would necessitate positioning the ground crew in such a way that the operation would be slowed.

After today's hearing, the commission, headed by Mr. Justice Kellogg of the Supreme Court of Canada, took a week's recess until May 27.

Frobisher Profit $267,638 in '56

TORONTO (CP)—Frobisher Ltd., with interests in a wide range of mining companies, had net profit in 1956 of $267,638 compared with $281,829 in 1955.

In an article by Lombard, his banking and finance expert, the newspaper says, "one of the most striking features of the international currency markets has been the sustained display of strength by the Canadian dollar in the face of the rapid deterioration in the country's current account balance of payments."

SO DOES INFLOW
The reason, says Lombard, is that as the current account deficit gets larger, so does the net inflow of capital into Canada.

"The interesting thing about the big jump in Canadian borrowing abroad in the form of new capital issues between 1955 and 1956 is that it appears to have been stimulated to a very large extent by the severe tightening of monetary restrictions in the Dominion itself during the last couple of years."

In attempting to cope with the official credit squeeze on the one hand and the demand for loans on the other, commercial banks had resorted to heavy liquidation of their holdings of government securities. This forced down prices and boosted interest rates, thus creating the "strongest of inducements" to Canadian borrowers to turn to the United States market where money could be obtained more easily and more cheaply.

"Thus, instead of restraining the development boom in the way that had been intended, the Canadian government's tight money program has merely caused the financing of it to be switched to an even larger extent than before to the American capital market."

PRAYER FOR TODAY

We thank Thee, heavenly Father, for the revelation of truth by which our lives may be guided. As we discover the forces of nature which can put power in our hands, let not our little knowledge obscure Thy great truth; through Christ our Lord, Amen.

IRMA, Alta. (CP)—David Glasgow, 14, was killed Thursday when hit by lightning in his community, 100 miles east of Edmonton, police said.

City Airman Gets His George Medal

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two airmen who last year rescued an injured pilot from his flaming jet at Marville, France, Thursday were presented with the George Medal by Governor-General Vincent Massey during a one-day vice-regal visit here.

Mr. Massey also presented Queen's Scout plaques to five Manitoba scouts during ceremonies watched by more than 500 scouts in front of government house.

Flt. Lt. R. G. Morgan, 26, of Vancouver, and LAC Harry John Waters, 28, of Victoria, received the George Medal for their actions in the rescue of Filt. Lt. E. L. Fine, 21, of Montreal and London, Ont.

Filt. Lt. Fine's Sabre stalled and crashed while coming in for a landing at the RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing. Both airmen honored Thursday pulled the pilot out while the jet and its ammunition burned fiercely.

In the citation read by Lionel Massey, the governor-general's secretary, the airmen were honored for their "courageous and sustained rescue efforts."

The parents of both men attended.

For Filt. Lt. Morgan it was the first of two important occasions. He will be married May 25 at Banff, Alta.

The George Medal is second only to the George Cross in awards given to servicemen or civilians for acts of heroism not in the face of an enemy.

The night passed without anything happening, however.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—An 81-year-old man asked that a traffic ticket he received for going the wrong way on a one-way street be cancelled.

"My eyesight is so poor I couldn't see the one-way sign," he said.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Rem-taurateur Sam Bookbinder says an elderly man peddling shoelaces always has managed to be in front of his restaurant when he goes to work, just in time to get a daily dime. But Bookbinder never took the shoelaces.

The other day Sam handed him the dime as usual and the older said:

"I don't like to bring this up, sir, but the laces are now 15 cents."

Eskimo Freed

CAMBRIDGE BAY, N.W.T. (CP)—Stephen (Uncle Alec) Angulalik, 57, an Eskimo operator of an isolated Arctic trading post, was found not guilty Thursday on a charge of murder arising from the fatal stabbing of another Eskimo at Perry River last New Year's Eve.
